Mussolini's men entered Addis Ababa, driving out the Ethiopian looters, bringing safety to various Europeans, including our own minister.

In seven months Mussolini has conquered Ethiopia's millions, killing and wounding 250,000 of them, marching steadily ahead through dangerous valleys, high mountains, driving out the Ethiopian armies that were directed by skilled soldiers from Turkey, Scandinavia and elsewhere.

To appreciate what Mussolini has accomplished by will power and the enthusiasm of revolution, it is well to remember that it took us some fifty years to get rid of small groups of hostile Indians, and took the British Empire forever and a day to conquer a few Boers in the Transvaal.

Mussolini, imitating another Roman, "cæsar, saw and conquered." Give him credit, whether you admire and sympathize with Ethiopia's slave-dealing "civilization" or not.

Those impressed by the high qualities of Ethiopia's Arab slave-trading-ruler will note that in the great crisis his presence of mind remained. The Associated Press says he took with him on the British boat, "the imperial family jewels, many cases of gold bullion, and gold coins." On his way from Addis Ababa to the British ship, he stopped to take all the cash from the treasury and customs house at Diredawa.

This reminds you of his alleged ancestor, son of King Solomon and Sheba. His mother sent him back from Abyssinia to see King Solomon, according to the solemn belief of Ethiopians. The young man looked around, and when he left took everything worth while, including the sacred ark of the covenant, the one before which King David danced, to please the Lord.

Ethiopians believe that they have that ark now, if the Italians haven't taken it. Selassie's ancestor left in its place some boards wrapped up to look like it. That is a practical family.

Interesting Ethiopian "pictures in words" came through from Addis Ababa. They showed Ethiopian ladies, loaded down with loot, rushing to hide it in the jungle, one group of Ethiopians, after looting shops and dwellings, "hijacked" in the best American prohibition manner, by others that arrived too late.

Ethiopian "chiefs," recently wearing samples of lion's mane on their heads, now creep through the jungle, trying to reach the coast before their "personal enemies," ill-treated slaves, miserable debtors with hands cut off, and others, have a chance to murder them.

All the Haile Selassie royal family, himself, Empress, Crown Prince and others, reached the British warship safely and are on their way to Palestine, to take up a residence in Jerusalem. That probably will not be permanent. The Emperor recently bought a house in London, and will probably join other kings out of a job, that trot up and down Piccadilly and Bond street.

Every good Mohammedan, at least once in his lifetime, would make the pilgrimage to Mecca. He wants to honor Allah, the all high god, and Allah's one and only prophet, Mohammed.

Russia discourages such pilgrimages, wishes Mohammedans to believe that their prophet, Mohammed, was an ignorant fanatic, unable to read or write, who never made the round trip to Heaven. But recently, as a matter of policy, the Bolshevik government allowed a group of Mohammedan pilgrims to start on the sacred journey. On the way they were attacked by starving wolves, and seven were devoured.

The pious, although not believers in Mohammed, will grieve, knowing that Communist Bolshevism will tell the surviving pilgrims:

"Next time select a wolf for your prophet."

In Florida, a well-meaning preacher, who thought it his duty to let rattlesnakes bite him to show the power of God, actually did let the snakes bite him without first removing their fangs. He is dead, the jury said, "by the bite of a rattlesnake through his own carelessness."

The poor fanatic succeeded only in proving the power of rattlesnake poison. The laws of the universe could hardly be suspended to justify the whim of one well-meaning fanatic.

When a killer strikes—he leaves not only the victim, but those who are near and dear. Beaten down by the tragedy which befell them when their seven-year-old daughter, Mary, met a brutal early fate at the hands of a strangler are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Proulx of Waterville, Me.—dazed by it all. And little Lina, Aged 5, can only think of her sister, Mary, as "losted."

VIGILANTES SET TO HUNT GIRL SLAYER

By JOHN ULLMAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Waterville, Me., May 6—Lack of progress in the hunt for the strangler of Mary Proulx caused a group of citizens to plan an investigating committee of their own today.

A citizens' committee comparable to vigilantes was discussed.

The proposal reflected a general concern over the safety of children and widespread dissatisfaction with alleged failure to co-ordinate law enforcement agencies in the search for the slayer of the seven-year-old girl found throttled yesterday and for the strangler of Annie Knights, 12, last October.

LINK CRIMES

Belief that the slayer of both is the same man, and perhaps a respected member of the community given to temporary maniacal lapses, caused parents to safeguard their children by every possible means. Many were accompanied to and from school by their elders today.

Raymond Rogers, prominent local attorney and counsel for the medical examiner, voiced the sentiments of several city leaders today when he criticised the three agencies con-

Rome, May 6—Rapid establishment of Italian authority over the whole of Abyssinia, not only as the result of the Italian conquest but also to put down rebellion against the fallen emperor, will be the next Italian move in Abyssinia, it was disclosed by Premier Mussolini as his victorious armies marched into Addis Ababa.

In an exclusive interview, Il Duce, when asked exactly what he intended to do regarding the fleeing emperor, what type of government he intended to establish in Addis Ababa and whether he intended to make Abyssinia a colony, replied:

"First of all Italy can now be numbered among 'satisfied states.'"

PutDowling In Welfare Job Again

Announcement was made today at the Municipal Welfare Department that John C. L. Dowling has been re-elected executive director of the department and secretary to the Board of Overseers of the Public Welfare.

It is expected that formal announcement of the vote will be made later by Mayor Mansfield and by James A. McMurray, chairman of the Board of Overseers.

Dowling has been a storm center in the alleged fireproof coal probe, a report on which has not yet been made by the Finance Commission.

He came in for considerable criticism, but City Councillor Robert G. Wilson, Jr., of Dorchester charged that an attempt was being made to make Dowling the "goat" in the investigation.

POLICE TRACE SOMERVILLE LETTERS

Ten state detectives and a corps of postal inspectors were in Somerville today investigating the bomb plot aimed at Governor Curley and disclosed by receipt at the State House of an ingenuous infernal machine.

Robert P. Phipps, handwriting and typewriting expert, was called into the probe. He was furnished with three threatening letters the Governor has received, as well as with the paper covering of the bomb, with its handwritten address.

The letters, it was learned, were mailed from Malden, Somerville and Everett—in that order—within the last six weeks.

CHECK RADIO SHOPS

They were mailed, State Police said, so that each arrived at the State House on Tuesdays, one week apart. The last was received three weeks ago. And the bomb package was received on a Tuesday.

State police were split into two squads. One group was checking radio and small eclectic shops in an attempt to find where the wire used in the machine was purchased.

They were also questioning a long list of veteran telegraphers and radio mechanics who were familiar with the type of hook-up peculiar to the machine.

The arrangement of the wires, state police said, was that familiar to old-time telegraphers and to

Man's Body Found Off Pawtucket

Pawtucket, R. I., May 6—The sea gave up a body today—the body of a 50-year-old man with a fractured skull and a mass of cuts and bruises on his body.

Well-clothed, so far as the sodden garments showed after a long time in the water, the man was of evident culture, police said.

Every single mark that might have identified the body was stripped from the clothing.

Fingerprints were taken late today and the formula was to be broadcast to all principal cities in the country as well as being forwarded to Washington.

The body floated in near the Pawtucket Boat Club. Authorities are certain there was foul play.

Council Confirms Murray 6 to 3

By vote of 6 to 3, the executive council today confirmed Governor Curley's appointment of Professor John J. Murray of Boston University to be chairman of the state public utilities commission at $8,000 a year.

The council again postponed for a week action on the controversial nomination of Mrs. Margaret O'Riordan of Brighton, vice-chairman of the Democratic State Committee, to be state librarian.

Professor Murray, who replaces Henry C. Atwill as public utilities chairman, doubles the salary he was receiving as an associate commissioner of labor and industries. Atwill, retained as a member of the commission, will receive $7000 instead of $8000.

'NEW COOLIDGE' PLEA STIRS CONNECTICUT

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Hartford, Ct., May 6—A demand for a presidential nominee of the type of Calvin Coolidge, uttered by former United States Senator Hiram Bingham, brought cheers from 600 delegates attending the G. O. P. two-day spring state convention here in Foot Guard Hall.

Former Senator Bingham, keynoter of the convention, issued a scathing denunciation of the Raw Deal and called upon his listeners to choose between "the appeals to passion and prejudice of the leaders of the New Deal and the wisdom of Calvin Coolidge."

Assailing the record of broken promises of the Administration in Washington, Bingham compared President Roosevelt to King Charles The First of England "who told the Parliament what laws they must pass, what taxes they must raise."

He quoted these lines of the historian, Macauley, on King Charles, as apt of the Roosevelt Administration:

"Faithlessness . . . is the chief stain on his memory . . . He seems to have learned from (those) . . . Whom he most es-

BIG ZEP READY FOR N. Y. HOP

Friedrichshafen, Germany, May 6 (AP)—Motors of the Hindenburg were put through final tests today and pronounced ready for the giant airship's first North American cruise which begins tonight with 50 passengers and a huge cargo of mail aboard.

The Zeppelin's scheduled time of departure is 8 p. m. (2 p. m., Eastern Standard Time), and it is due to arrive at Lakehurst, N. J., some time Saturday afternoon.

An extra motor was taken aboard and technical appliances given a last tuning. More hydrogen gas was placed in the bags and two and one-half tons of foodstuffs shipped.

The passenger list included Sir Hubert Wilkins, the explorer, and Lady Wilkins; Father Paul Schulte, who obtained special permission from the Pope to hold mass daily aboard the airship; Ministerial Director Karl Ritter of the German foreign office; U. S. Naval Commander William B. Leeds and Mrs. Leeds, and Lord Mayor Frits Krebs of Frankfort-Am-Main.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin designer and commander, will be aboard the Hindenburg but the ship again will be under the control of Captain Ernst A. Lehmann.

New Orleans, May 6 (INS)—Fred Hunter, companion of Alvin Karpis, America's erstwhile public enemy No. 1, was held under $200,000 bail by United States Commissioner Reginald Carter, Jr., today.

Hunter, arrested last week when G-men under J. Edgar Hoover apprehended Karpis, is wanted for a $46,000 mail robbery in Garrettsville, O.

Poet D'Annunzio Seriously Ill

D'Annunzio took to bed three days ago, but despite his illness ordered the firing today of a 27-gun salute in celebration of the Italian conquest of Addis Ababa. He suffered a grave attack of influenza last March.

U.S., France Sign Trade Pact Today

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The State Department announced today an agreement with France on a reciprocal trade pact which is to be signed in Washington late this afternoon.

Although no details of the agreement were available immediately, great importance was attached in both countries to the commercial accord which is intended to lower certain restrictions now applied by the French against American products.

STOCKS UP

New York, May 6 (INS)—Fractional gains predominated in a quiet and steady stock market today with gold and silver shares setting the pace. Dome mines and U. S. Smelting up $2 each and Cerro De Pasco $1.

Steels, motors and rails were quiet although Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, N. Y. Central and Atchison advanced fractionally.

UNPLEDGED CALIFORNIA VOTE SEEN AS LANDON AID

DELEGATION WILL WEAR NO LABEL TO JUNE CONVENTION

San Francisco, May 6 (INS) — Late figures from yesterday's presidential preference primary election today disclosed the choice of California Republicans for the Warren (uninstructed) group over the slate pledged to Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas.

The hard battle for the Golden State's 44 delegates to the national Republican convention in Cleveland swung to the slate nominally pledged to District Attorney Earl Warren of Alameda County, with the following figures:

The Landon advocates, however, did not look upon the results as a defeat, asserting the Kansas Governor now will merely have the votes of the uninstructed delegation instead of the independent Landon group.

In the Democratic columns, President Roosevelt's approved delegates swept to an easy victory. His group completely snowed under those of Upton Sinclair, the Production for Use campaigner, and Congressman John Steven McGroarty, Townsend Plan sponsor.

He released them "from obligations to me so they may be guided in all convention matters solely by their own consciences."

Governor Landon Snapped With Family

Landon Leading Borah In Vital Mid-West Battle

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 6 (AP)—Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas held a lead over Senator William E. Borah of Idaho today in their contest for South Dakota's eight delegates to the Republican national convention—the first clear cut battle between the two aspirants in the agricultural midwest.

Returns from yesterday's primary elections showed the eight delegates running as uninstructed although seven were formally pledged to Gov. Landon and the eighth claimed by his camp had received 33,007 votes in 1327 of the state's 1959 precincts against 31,460 for the eight delegates pledged to the Idahoan.

Gov. Landon took an early lead and maintained it throughout tabulations last night. His margin varied from about 1,000 to more than 2,000 votes and then dropped to approximately 1600, where it remained fairly constant as late returns increased the total vote.

President Roosevelt's slate of eight delegates, all pledged to him, had no opposition on the Democratic side.

Landon Sweep Increased By Late Returns Here

Official returns of last week's party primaries, now being tabulated in the office of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, reveal that the sweep for Governor Alfred M. Landon for the Republican nomination for President was even greater than first returns indicated, according to a statement issued today by Edwin F. Parker, president of the Landon-for-President Club of Massachusetts.

Final figures will not be available for the entire state for a few days, for in some cases the returns have been held up pending recounts in contests for delegates to the state convention of the two major parties.

82 PER CENT OF VOTE

Yet the Landon count shows that more than 82 per cent of the Republicans who expressed their preference on the ballot, were in the name of the Kansas governor, the statement added.

It continued:

"The final vote for the city of Boston may be taken as a fair index of the sentiment of the voters, and permits of several interesting comparisons.

"Of the total of 64,261 Democrats who went to the polls in Boston, only 19,209 expressed a preference for President, representing only 30 per cent.

"The final tabulation of the Democratic vote gave Roosevelt 15,496; Smith, 1104; Coughlin, 1861; Landon, 423; Townsend, 91, and all others, 232. President Roosevelt was the choice of 80.7 per cent of those expressing a preference, while 2.2 per cent of the Democrats voted for Landon.

"On the Republican side the total Boston vote was 20,610. Of this number, 17,140 or 54 per cent, expressed a presidential preference. Landon received 9151, which is 83.1 per cent of the total. President Roosevelt had 193 Republican votes.

"The balance were divided as follows: Bullard, 408; Hoover, 828; Knox, 145; Vandenberg, 230; Coughlin, 38, and all others, 147.

"These figures, which are representative of the sentiment of the voters as recorded generally throughout the state, by far exceeded all predictions, and appear to indicate a very strong Landon preference.

"They unquestionably will give added impulse to the Landon movement in other sections of the country.

"Our organization intends to continue its work of informing those who are interested, concerning Landon and his record, believing as we do that he is the outstanding man to clean up the New Deal mess in Washington."

Tennessee Republicans Sweep State for Landon

Nashville, Tenn., May 6(US)—Extolling the statesman-like qualities of Alf M. Landon, and expressing the determination to win with him in November as the presidential candidate of the party, the Republican state convention yesterday endorsed the Kansas governor and instructed Tennessee's 17 delegates to vote for him at Cleveland "as long as his name shall be before the convention."

The resolutions, among the most sweeping yet given for the Kansan, applied technically only to eight delegates-at-large elected by the convention, each with one-half a vote. Actually, as 12 or 13 district delegates are already locally instructed for Landon, and the remaining district will instruct for him a week hence, the result of yesterday's action is to line up the great border state of Tennessee solidly behind the governor of Kansas.

But Tennessee's delegates are not merely instructed for Landon, the convention went further, and included in its resolution instructions to the delegation"to do all in their power to nominate him as the standard-bearer of the Republican party."

Bankhead Brothers Win With Ease in Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., May 6 (AP)—Senator John H. Bankhead and his brother, William B. Bankhead, House Democratic leader, appeared today to have won new terms in Congress.

The brothers, joint authors of the Bankhead cotton control law, received sweeping majorities in unofficial counts from yesterday's Democratic primary. Democratic nominations are tantamount to election.

Indiana's Congressmen Leading for Re-election

Indianapolis, May 6 (AP)—All of Indiana's 12 Representatives in Congress apparently were assured of renomination as the counting of ballots cast in the primary election yesterday proceeded slowly today.

There was no vote as to presidential preference but long ballots, made necessary by vigorous fights for the various county offices at stake as well as for delegates to the state conventions, slowed up the counting of the votes.

Timothy J. Sullivan of Springfield, chief accountant for the state racing commission, has resigned and George H. Donahue, certified public accountant of Myrtle street, Beacon Hill, has been appointed to the $4000 a year post, it was announced at the State House today. Sullivan said he had to give more time to his coal business.

teemed that between him and his subjects there could be nothing in the nature of mutual contracts . . . That in every promise which he made, there was an implied reservation that such promise might be broken in case of necessity, and that of the necessity he was the sole judge."

PICK DELEGATES

The convention ended its session today after going through the formality of selecting 19 unpledged delegates and alternates to the national convention to be led by J. Henry Roraback, who declared:

"We are going to Cleveland with an open heart and open mind."

Strong sentiment for Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas in all sections of the state was reported by local delegates attending today's pow-wow, some of whom privately displayed bitterness of dominance of Old Guard leaders and claimed the party needs new and younger leaders at the helm.

Prefacing his remarks with a warning that the party stands at the crossroads, former Senator Bingham emphasized that a decision cannot be shirked.

"There is the choice between emotional appeal, passion, prejudice, sentiment, on the one hand, and on the other, dispassionate reason where 'prudence points the way'," he declared.

He recommended the exercise of "Yankee common sense" as an offset to the lure of the "silver-toned radio voice, a heart warming fireside manner and charming chinlifting smile" of President Roosevelt.

"Are we going to follow still further in the path pointed out by Karl Marx as the New Dealers would have us do or are we going to advance along the path whose sign boards are taken from the Constitution of the United States?" He asked.

Seizure of private papers by the Roosevelt administration in violation of restrictive clauses in the Bill of rights, Bingham denounced as acts of "despotism."

"They will eventually lead to a loss of our hard won liberties he asserted. "In the long run the poor and unfortunate who do not lick the imperial boots and applaud the dictator's acts will be the worst sufferers."

In another part of his address, Bingham said:

"If we let the New Dealers violate these rights, diminish the power of the courts of justice to see that these rights are not trampled upon, increase the power of the executive on the theory that bankers and business men are wicked and greedy, while Democratic politicians are interested solely in promoting the general welfare, we shall promote tyranny and despotic bureaucratic rule."

COURT RIDICULED

He instanced where the Supreme Court was held up to ridicule and accused of belonging to the "horse and buggy days" when it dared to protect persons deprived of their property without due process of law.

"It is worthy to note that kings and dictators, whose designs have been hindered by courts of justice have always been enraged, and whenever possible have punished the justices," the speaker continued.

He declared that it remained for New Dealers in the present cabinet "to attempt to bring our highest tribunal into disrepute by referring to one of its decisions as 'legalized robbery.'"

An increase of $1 in the tax rate for Dedham this year was announced today by Benjamin Dresman, chairman of the board of assessors.

The increase, making this year's rate $35, is due to a $10,000 appropriation to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the town next fall and the restoring of a 5 per cent to all town employes.

IL DUCE IN WAR INTERVIEW PLEDGES TO SPEED PEACE

in he first pointed out he has no desires for other Colonial possessions from other nations in Africa, Mussolini said:

"Italy's task has been made easier by the flight of the Emperor which has created a new entirely unexpected set of conditions.

"The political, juridical destiny of Abyssinia remains to be decided. Who is there left to make peace with, now that the Emperor is gone?

"Abyssinia is a complex of tribes of differing race.

"It seems obvious that the best thing for the interests of all concerned will be the rapid establishment of Italian authority throughout the country.

"The fact that the Abyssinians rose against the Emperor and even attacked him during his retreat, whereas the same tribes welcomed the advance of our troops, is an act of self determination on their part in favor of Italian rule.

"Anyone suggesting we mean to exploit and oppress the Abyssinians is talking sheer nonsense. The facts are directly contrary.

"We have established markets. We have given the tribes hospitals, food, motor transport. When they see motor lorries and airplanes haven't they before their eyes the first signs of a better future awaiting them?

SETTLED BY ITALY

"The terms of peace must be marked by the Roman spirit. It cannot be a lame peace, for we mean that the Abyssinian problem—will be settled once and for all—settled as it has been by our own sacrifices alone, by our own blood alone, by our own money alone without asking anyone for anything."

Asked whether other countries, including even League sanctionist states, will be included in any plan to share the economic development of Abyssinia under Italian rule, Mussolini replied:

"They (the sanctionist powers) certainly will be included. We shall not shut the door against economic enterprises by friendly countries in view of the fact it is our desire to increase the well-being of the Abyssinian population and the wealth of the world.

"As for our financial resources, you can say they are far greater than statistics published by the League of Nations led people to believe.

"The world would be surprised to know the truth about our real financial strength as it was surprised to learn about our military strength."

Mussolini thinks minor military operations are still necessary in Ogaden province, but revealed that his attention is now turning to the situation in Europe. Asked what he felt was needed to reform the league, Il Duce said:

"It has become a matter of common agreement that the league needs reorganizing."

He cited a speech to this effect he made in the Chamber of Deputies in the Autumn of 1933. He said:

"Events made the urgency of this reform more pressing. Italy is prepared to help in it. My own conviction is that the league can and must go on, but its task must be made proportionate to its powers.

"The spirit of the league must be adapted to the needs of the various nations and the respective situations of the European states."

READY TO HELP

Asked whether Italy is ready to partake in negotiations for a new understanding between Germany and England and France, Mussolini answered:

"It was sanctions which imposed an attitude of extreme reserve on Italy after the remilitarization of the Rhineland, but Italy is still ready to help in bringing about a frank, definite understanding between the great powers of western Europe.

"These powers must end by coming to an agreement. If they go to war among themselves the consequence will be the crash of the whole European civilization."

PLEDGE TO BRITAIN

Here is Mussolini's personal pledge to Britain given to me in the most positive manner at the moment of the triumph of the Italians in Abyssinia:

"My policy has never planned any harm whatsoever to the interest o fthe British empire. It doesn't plan any harm now. Only people blinded by bad faith could believe the contrary.

"Italy has not the least nor the remotest hankering after Egypt. I look on Egypt as an independent country—not an African country but one belonging to the Mediterranean and with which Italy has been and Italy will be on the best terms.

"Italy has no political interest in the Sudan and none in Palestine. Is is utterly false therefore to ascribe to Italy any responsibility whatsoever for the troubles between the Arabs and Jews."

Mussolini's next words were directed to the British government:

"I have always been ready—I am ready now—and I shall continue to be ready to confirm what I have just said to you in any form that may be required."

Governor of Addis Named To Enforce Il Duce Rule

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press

Rome, May 6—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, establishing Italian rule in Addis Ababa, named Giuseppe Bottai, governor of Rome, as civil governor of the former imperial Ethiopian capital today.

Rome in Fascism accepted this action as a carrying out of Premier Mussolini's proclamation, after the occupation of Addis Ababa, yesterday, that "Ethiopia is Italian."

Marshal Badoglio, commander-in-chief of the Fascist forces, telegraphed thanks to Premier Mussolini for Il Duce's praise of the army and workers who effected the fall of Ethiopia's capital.

"We are all happy to have lived up to the country's expectations in our work," Badoglio said.

MORE CHEERS FOR DUCE

Italy's undeclared war on Ethiopia resolved into an unsigned peace today, and Premier Mussolini immediately enforced a campaign to defend the fruits of the African conquest against the world.

The Italian nation carried its boisterous celebration of victory into the second day, but Mussolini ruled that domestic business must carry on, to combat the continuing League of Nations sanctions.

Crowds assembled before Il Duce's palace and he appeared on a balcony in response to a roar of cheering.

"Viva Italia," he shouted repeatedly."

Echoing Mussolini's proclamation during the national mobilization last night, "we are ready to defend our shining victory with the same intrepid, irrevocable decision with which we achieved it," crowds shouted, "Hear that, Geneva!"

A tentative program for transformation of Ethiopia into an Italian possession was already formulated.

HAIL KING AS EMPEROR

"Emperor! Emperor!" twenty thousand jubilant students shouted over and over again to King Victor Emmanuel at the Quirinal Palace where he appeared on a balcony in the uniform of a general and saluted.

The shouts of "Imperatore" recalled frequent rumors that the King eventually would be named Emperor of Ethiopia, just as King Edward of England bears the title Emperor of India.

Rome Flag Rules All In Addis

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

With the Italian Army in Addis Ababa, May 6—An Italian flag flew over Emperor Haile Selassie's palace, natives raised their hands awkwardly in Fascist salutes and Italy owned Ethiopia's capital by right of conquest today.

The long column Badoglio commands was still pouring into the city. Hundreds of motor trucks roared through the streets, the troops cheering and singing.

Ethiopians who had terrorized foreigners and their compatriots alike hid their rifles and appeared waving white flags and cheering the Italians.

U. S. Legation Safe; Italian Guards Retire

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Vice-Consul William M. Cramp notified the State Department at 6 a. m. Addis Ababa time (11 o'clock last night, E.S.T.), that the Italian guard around the American legation in Addis Ababa had been withdrawn after disarming a number of natives in the neighborhood.

Cramp's radio message said:

"The Italian guard has left, having taken a number of rifles from natives in the neighborhood who had been firing during the night. I expect the minister (Cornelius Van H. Engert) early this morning."

His report indicated to officials here that normal conditions in the vicinity of the bullet-scarred American diplomatic mission had been restored.

France to Oppose Italy On Annexing Ethiopia

Paris, May 6 (AP)—Authoritative sources said today France would throw its full weight against outright annexation of Ethiopia as an Italian colony or raising of an army there which might be used in a European conflict.

Eden Declares League 'Not Through With Italy'

London, May 6 (INS)—Britain's horror of war, not fear that Italy could triumph over the empire's fighting ships and men, prevented military sanctions against Italy, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told a packed House of Commons today as he openly admitted the "failure of the League of Nations."

Only the closing of the Suez Canal could have stopped Italy's African campaign, he said, "and that sanction would inevitably lead to war."

In a surprisingly firm reply to opposition attacks, Eden nevertheless hinted the League of Nations is not yet through with Italy.

"The League must go on," he thundered, "but whatever action may be taken by the League council at Geneva Monday must be collective."

Americans Consider Exploit Loan to Italy

London, May 6 (INS)—A group of American financiers and Italian financial and government delegates are discussing a loan to Italy for exploitation of Abyssinia, an exchange telegraph said it was learned in Rome today.

S. Gualino, Italian banker, connected with artificial silk firms, is preparing proposals to be submitted to the Americans, the dispatch said.

Race Shower Readiness

SALLY SCUDDER NATALIE FOLSOM BETTY WARE LESLIE BLAKE

LATEST TRACK WEAR REVEALED AT SHOW

Feminine thrills at the race track this season will not be restricted to thundering hoofs and pari-mutuel palpitations.

Because there's excitement in the new clothes women will wear at the races. In the wide-brimmed, coquettish hats. In the gay accessories. And in the new fabrics.

Particularly the fabrics.

The "Grandstand and Paddock" show of the Fashion Congress which took place yesterday in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel was a dramatic forecast of the sartorial side of the racing season, and was of blue ribbon quality from start to finish.

Mrs. William Brace Pratt, chic Social Registerite, was chairman of the distinguished fashion jury. She was assisted by Mrs. F. Wadsworth Bush as chairman.

The other socially prominent judges were: Mrs. Edward Cunningham, Mrs. Francis Weld, Mrs. Richard Saltonstall, Jr., Mrs. Edwin F. Cave, Mrs. Maurice Prior of New York, Mrs. Mortimer Seabury, Mrs. George S. Mumford, Miss Phyllis Forbes, Mrs. Phillip Sherwood and Mrs. Thomas P. Beal.

A bathing suit fabric, silk jersey, now appears in a spectator sports dress important enough for almost any daytime occasion . . . Sharkskin, a new fabric which first appeared in shorts, turns up in tailored suits and smart topcoats . . . Silk canvas which Schiaparelli first used recently in vesters and "dickies" now makes fashion news as a suit and topcoat fabric.

The four society girl mannequins chosen to model the "Grandstand and Paddock" clothes, enhanced the loveliness of the clothes. They were Miss Sally Scudder, Miss Natalie Folsom, Miss Betty Ware and Miss Leslie Blake.

Miss Folsom's glowing tan, which she acquired during her recent trip to Bermuda, made her an unusually good model for the summery clothes she wore. It was particularly effective in contrast with the dead white of a sharkskin topcoat, which delighted the smartly dressed jury.

The topcoat, inspired by an aviator's coat, was a masterpiece of jaunty swagger.

"I think it's grand that they're making fabrics now which are crush-resistant," said Mrs. Pratt. "I seem to spend most of my time in the summer having my clothes pressed, so I'm thankful for sharkskin and these other new fabrics."

Leslie Blake, too, recently returned from the South with the enviable coppery skin tones which make her modeling even more effective than usual. She was most effective in a printed, loop-sleeved dress in a May-wine shade and a huge matching cartwheel hat with velvet tendril-ed grapes.

Betty Ware, blonde and blue eyed debutante, brought forth such exclamations as "simply divine" and "absolutely perfect" when she modeled a wool challis dress in a Tyrolean print.

"Very smart-looking" obviously applied not only to the costume she wore but to Sally Scudder herself, when she modeled a classic white crepe dress and a blue polka-dotted coat and matching kerchief scarf. Sally, another debutante, who is also blonde and blue-eyed, won applause for herself as well as for the clothes she modeled.

Miss Annice Brink, fashion editor of the Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, explained the aims and methods of the Fashion Congress and acted as commentator.

The stores and specialty shops which exhibited clothes yesterday were Jordan Marsh Company, Lamson and Hubbard, R. H. White Company, Theodore, Inc., E. T. Slattery Company, Jay's, Kennedy's Women's Shop, C. F. Hovey, Mannan and C. Crawford Hollidge. Hats were shown by Fannette and shoes by Wilbur's.

After the judges' ballots were counted, the winning costumes were awarded the black and silver Fashion Congress tag. When a shopper buys merchandise labeled with this tag, she knows what she is buying has been approved by women of recognized good taste and distinction in dress.

Photographs of the spectator clothes for the races will be published daily for a week in the American and Advertiser.

'MELLICAN MORALS

All Samee Too Loosee for Chinee

Hongkong, May 6 (AP)—Authorities took steps today to protect Chinese morals from American influence.

The Canton provincial authorities began a more strict enforcement of dress laws under which the appearance of bare arms and legs was banned.

A dozen girls were arrested as they went to a motion picture show, the police ordering them to go home and dress according to the law or go to jail.

The girls, defiant, went to jail and fellow students threatened to go on strike in sympathy.

Canton provincial authorities have been trying for two or three years to institute dress reforms among young Chinese women who, they alleged, modeled their clothes on what they see in American motion pictures.

Hangs Himself As Famliy Sleeps

While his wife and three children were asleep, David B. Bernstein, 42, of Chamberlain road, Newton, got out of bed, went to the cellar and hanged himself, it was discovered today.

Dr. J. Applebaum, a neighbor, was called when the body was found, but it was too late. Medical Examiner T. Morton Gallagher said Bernstein had been nervous, ill and worried over his trucking business.

DOG Hero at FIRE

SOUNDS ALARM BY BARKING

After arousing five persons imperilled by flames in their burning home in Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, today, Teddy, a Spitz dog, was overcome by smoke, but was himself rescued by Nathan Sachs, one of those he had warned of the blaze.

Nathan and the dog were overcome by smoke and were revived by a police special service squad.

The fire, originating on the top floor of a three-story building, was discovered by the dog who immediately set up a wild barking and scratching on doors of the Sachs home. When the family finally was aroused, flames and smoke filled the corridors and some of the rooms.

The police car, passing by, helped to bring the members of two families down the stairway to safety.

Those occupying the building were Mrs. Harry Sachs and her two sons, Nathan, 16, and Abraham, 19, on the second floor, and Abraham Miller and daughter, Ruth, 19, on the third floor.

The lower floor, formerly used as a store, was vacant. The loss was estimated at $6000.

After the Sachs family had been helped down the stairs, the dog was discovered to be missing. Frantic yelps from the burning building drew the attention of Nathan to his heroic pet, and the boy rushed back into the burning house and dragged the animal out.

They were overcome at the same moment by smoke. Neither, it was said, will suffer any serious consequences.

B. U. Seniors Crown May Day Queen

cerned in the investigation—the attorney-general's office, the county sheriff's office and the city police—for failure to co-ordinate their efforts under a single directing head.

"If various authorities don't get together and do this thing right, there'll be a citizens' committee with 24 hours," Rogers said.

LACK LEADER

Rogers yesterday complained to Attorney General Clyde Chapman, of Belfast, for having held up the autopsy on the violated body of the latest victim for four hours, pending his arrival, and for having no one leader of the probe.

"They are not getting together," he said today. "I have children of my own and I know a lot of other men who are fathers and this sort of thing has got to be stamped out once and for all."

He said a meeting would probably be held in his office late today to set in motion the machinery for organization of a citizens' committee so the committee could be brought into being without delay if it is deemed necessary.

"Obviously the two murders are enough alike to warrant a broad investigation instead of concentration on minor details," he said.

TO ATTEND MEETING

Rogers discussed his plan with Dr. Owen B. Ames, psychiatrist, of Boston and Fairfield, Me., the home of Annie Knights, and Dr. Ames expected to attend the meeting to tell the committee planners the type of fugitive with whom they are dealing.

The rag gag that cut her mouth, the twine with which her hands were bound across her breast, the empty pint bottle and the man's shirt and collars found near her body in the brush were still undeveloped clues today in the murder of the little Proulx girl. So was the empty pop-corn box. The worn rubber heels also found at the scene were eliminated.

Solution of the murder, and of the murder of Annie Knights, may hinge on a massive bit of drama to be enacted in an Elm street undertaking parlor.

Suspects, of whom there are six—three still to be apprehended and questioned—will be taken one after another into the brilliantly lighted room where Mary's desecrated body lies.

Half a hundred pairs of eyes, will be watching for an emotional break-down which might spell solution of the case. In this "shock-view" method there is hope, authorities believe.

"Solve one and we'll solve the other," were the words most often on the tips of the tongues of investigators at Waterville police headquarters today.

Sheriffs, police and troopers massed here in greater numbers than ever before—agreed that the two girls were murdered and mistreated by the same man.

BODY IN THICKET

Mary's body was found yesterday in a rain-drenched thicket on the banks of the placid Messalonskee river.

The older girl met death last October in a clump of bushes in the neighboring town of Fairfield, five miles away.

The city council in special session voted $1000 reward for the capture of Mary's slayer. A similar reward stands for the strangler of Annie Knights.

Confusion was added to the investigation today when Miss Freda McFadden, 22, a resident of adjoining Oakland who had been reported missing, returned to her home and said she had been kidnaped by two men in an automobile Monday, driven into the country, bound and gagged.

She said she finally broke away from them, fled, secreted herself in a ditch and eventually made her way home on foot.

LINK UNSEEN

Authorities were disinclined to the belief that the case had any connection with the murder mystery, but pointed out that it is illustrative of conditions menacing girls and young women hereabouts.

Although the three separate law-enforcement bodies are in hearty accord that the children were lured and dispatched to death by the same hands, they are far from unanimous beyond that point.

With three suspects being questioned and three others being sought across the length and breadth of the state, the investigation is being pursued along three distinctive avenues.

Some insist the "killer will turn out to be a vagabond fiend.

"LOOKED LIKE DOLL"

The third phase of the investigation centers around a search for the inevitable "half-wit."

Another — also a resident of Waterville—was picked up on the strength of a criminal record, including similar misconduct.

With the completion of the autopsy today by Dr. Julius Gottlieb of the Maine General Hospital in Lewiston it was definitely established that Mary Proulx was criminally assailed.

The sending of her stomach organs to Portland for chemical analysis lent great significance to an aspect of the case which had been subordinated earlier.

CAPTAIN BECKETT — CHIEF OF POLICE POIRIER

MARY PROULX

ROBERT RANCOURT

CHILD VICTIM, SCENE OF CRIME, CLUES IN MAINE SLAYING

Patrolman Dead, Bullet in Heart

Failure of Patrolman James F. Hennessey, 39, to report for duty at the Fields Corner station today resulted in the discovery of his body, a bullet wound in the heart, in his home in Monadnock street, Dorchester.

Sergeant Daniel N. O'Connell, sent to ascertain the reason for his fellow officer's absence, found the body, partially clad, on a bedroom floor. Hennessey's service revolver, with one shell exploded, was beside the body.

Associate Medical Examiner William Watters was summoned and will announce a finding today following an autopsy.

Two Women Here in Crew Of Russ Ship

For the second time within a week a Russian coal carrier docked at East Boston today with a crew that included two women.

The women, unable to speak English, told reporters through an interpreter they are widows. They said they decided "to see the world on a ship" after their husbands died in Russia. They had been aboard the ship for six months as mess girl and stewardess.

The coal carrier Kim arrived from Nicolaiesa, Russia, to discharge 3000 tons of coal here. The only member of the crew to speak English is the second officer, V. Furaev. The ship sails tomorrow to New York to load machinery for Leningrad.

State Flood Drive Nets $34,666

Lieutenant-Governor Joseph L. Hurley today turned over to the American Red Cross $34,666.83, which had been collected during the recent state drive to aid flood victims.

Of this amount, declared the lieutenant-governor, $12,707.79 had been collected during the one Tag Day campaign. The lieutenant-governor had been in charge of the drive.

3 Robbers Hunted

Three youthful bandits, who robbed a grocery store in Main street, Malden, after locking the manager in the cellar, and escaped with $18, were being sought by police today.

Curley 'Bomb' Clue Traced in Somerville

Since the bomb was sent through the mails and its paper covering showed a Somerville cancellation mark, the search was first concentrated in that district.

The second group of detectives were questioning a number of persons known to have made incendiary remarks about the governor in the past. Three of this group, they said, had been openly "radical" in their expressed hostility.

TEST POSTAL MARKS

Postal inspectors talked with all clerks, carriers and collectors in the Somerville district to determine if anyone recalled the package.

They planned their hopes on one recalling the peculiar addressing on the wrapped box. The words "State House" were run together into one word—"Statehouse."

This mode of inquiry was directed towards establishing in what sub-postal district the package was mailed. The cancellation marking on the covering was blurred and the Key number was indiscernible.

Postal chemists, however, hoped they might discover that number through tests.

State detectives were reluctant to discuss the contents of the threatening letters they had under scrutiny, but did disclose that one was entirely handwritten and that the contents of the other two were typewritten.

The handwriting on the envelopes, they said, was apparently that of the same person and it was quite similar to the writing on the package.

CHEMIST AT WORK

One Somerville man, who has been open and violent in his criticism of Governor Curley and of President Roosevelt during the past year, was first on the interrogation list, investigators said.

State Chemist Joseph T. Walker said that he was continuing tests to determine what type of explosive the machine might have contained.

Although the "trap" in the drainpipe from the governor's office was removed and its contents analyzed today no powder was found to have lodged in it.

State police feel that the water the governor poured on the package when he heard its clock-work mechanism ticking had washed away the explosive powder it contained.

The clockwork in the bomb was that of a seven-day clock, according to state detectives, although it was of cheap construction.

DRY OUT MACHINE

A peculiarity of it, they said, was that there were no identifying marks on the mechanism to show its manufacturer. A phase of the investigation, therefore, turned to establishing who manufactured the clock and where it was sold.

The infernal machine, homemade, of course, was not the work of a bungler, Captain John F. Stokes of the state detectives said. It was ingeniously and expertly contrived.

Wrapping paper in which the infernal machine was enclosed is also being dried out by special apparatus in the hope it will reveal fingerprints by which the sender might be traced.

NO EXPLOSIVE FOUND

Wires connected the various parts of the apparatus and were soldered at the connections, apparently to prevent any displacement of the mechanism during its handling in the mails, Captain Stokes said.

Governor Curley, who yesterday explained his coolness when the bomb was discovered by the assertion that he believed men died when their time came, continued today to be unalarmed at the situation.

Although he stated yesterday he would not seek a police guard for his home, he did not demure when Captain James Killen of the Jamaica Plain station assigned two officers to that duty on his own initiative.

Captain Killen said today the detail would be maintained at the governor's home for an indefinite period.

CURLEY'S HAT IN SENATE RING

Formal and definite announcement of his candidacy for the United States Senate is expected to be made by Governor Curley on the radio tonight.

His statement will put an end to rumors and gossip regarding his intentions in the coming campaign with the definite assertion that he plans to seek the Senate seat of Senator Marcus Coolidge.

His decision, made known first in yesterday's Boston Evening American, was revealed by a trustworthy source close to the chief executive after the governor had promised he would make a definite announcement regarding his intentions in a radio address this evening.

With his announcement there will be at least three avowed candidates in the Senate race, with no assurance from Senator Coolidge that he will not seek re-election.

7 Girls Live In Ease at White House

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Seven Alabama girls, all talking at once, tried to tell today what it's like to live in the White House. Then one put it this way:

"Oh, it's just too wonderful to try to tell!"

The girls won scholarships to the Women's Trade Union League Convention, and Mrs. Roosevelt invited them to spend the week at the White House.

Flowers in the vases are changed for them daily.

"Well," one answered, "we're still working girls, you know."

They came to Washington in their own car. An attendant takes it each night and stores it in the White House garage.

Mrs. Roosevelt also is having as house guests the eight trade union delegates from her home state of New York.

TOKYO BUDGET AT NEW HIGH DUE TO ARMS

Tokyo, May 6 (AP)—Eiichi Baba, minister of finance, told the House of Representatives today that Japan's "soaring advance" makes any decrease in national expenditures impossible and "calls forth positive increases in new appropriations."

In presenting the annual budget to the House, he cited the costs of maintennace of a Japanese army in Manchoukuo and improvements in naval and military establishments among the reasons for such increases.

"We must resort to bond issues to defray part of these expenditures," said Baba, "but endless deficits are impossible and the nation must be prepared to make sacrifices to cut its way through the present financial tangle.

"We cannot leave the cost of the maintenance of the government and the state to be shouldered by posterity."

Baba declared that, therefore, the government must revise its taxation policies and explore other sources of revenue such as state monopolies.

The Finance Minister announced it would be necessary to issue bonds for 777,000,000 yen ($228,853,000) to meet the year's deficit.

HAPPIEST GIRL

Blind, She Visits White House

Restricted to dwell in realms of darkness, her eyesight having been destroyed in a fall when she was 11, Miss Elizabeth B. Clancy's most cherished dream has always been to visit the White House. Now that wish has been fulfilled.

Miss Clancy, a proofreader of the Braille systems work, a project of the WPA here, was sent to the capital as a representative of the Massachusetts WPA exhibit. There Mrs. Roosevelt met her. Miss Clancy did not ask to visit the Roosevelts. The invitation came voluntarily from the "First Lady."

A military aide was sent for the girl who, upon her arrival at the White House, was taken in charge by Mrs. Roosevelt and led through the great house and into the gardens where the hostess picked some white roses for her guest.

Miss Clancy lives at 190 Savin Hill avenue and has been blind for 16 years.

She plays the piano and lectures before clubs and is a graduate of the Perkins Institute for the Blind and of Burdett's Business College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Clancy.

U. S. Drops Fight To Extradite Two

Paris, May 6 (AP)—Two men arrested in connection with the theft of $1,500,000 in securities from a Wall Street bank in January, 1935, will remain here.

John M. Keith of the United States Department of Justice said today he would return to America, having abandoned efforts to extradite Bernard Klein and Jacob Schwartz, the suspects. Keith said it had been definitely established that the two had never been in the United States.

$7335 for Red Cross

Somerville Man 38th Spinal Victim

Thomas Gourley, 69, of Willow avenue, West Somerville, 38th spinal meningitis victim in Boston, died in City hospital today. He was Boston's 12th non-resident victim to succumb to the disease in a Boston hospital.

Taken ill yesterday, he was sent to City hospital, where he died this morning.

Arthur Hood, 32, of Dorchester, despite an erroneous report of his death Saturday, was reported in fair condition, although his name is still on the danger list.

MABEY TO SEEK SANITY TESTS IN KILLING

Appointment of two psychiatrists to examine Stephen L. Mabey, 55-year-old former jockey, held for the alleged slaying of Mrs. Mildred Basse, 28, in her Dorchester home, is being sought by his counsel, they revealed today.

The announcement was made by Attorneys John M. Boyle and Benjamin F. Chesky of 18 Tremont street, when they appeared at the district attorney's office.

According to the counsel, the former jockey already has been examined by two state psychiatrists, who have said that he shows indications of insanity.

"We will probably base our defence," said Boyle, "on insanity. Mabey's father died in an insane asylum in Wilkesbarre, Pa. Mabey has shown insanity tendencies, plus the effect of illness he suffered some months ago will, no doubt, for mthe basis of our defese."

Mabey, according to Boyle, who visited him in his cell yesterday, spends all his time handicapping the horses, and he told his counsel he hoped to be out of jail before the close of New England's racing season. He sleeps and eats well.

'Don't Quit,' WPA Plea to Aid

Paul Edwards, State Works Progress Administration administrator, planned to spend today in Springfield in an effort to persuade District Director Henry M. Ehrlich not to resign.

Ehrlich's resignation came yesterday afternoon, effective May 16. Ehrlich, an attorney, was appointed recently to succeed James Ryan.

In his resignation he said he undertook the position with the understanding it would be temporary, and Edwards, it was learned, wants Ehrlich to stay on for at least two more months.

Cargo Taken Off Wrecked Freighter

Harwich, May 6 (AP)—A wrecking company crew with two tugboats and several barges today began unloading the damaged freighter Canadian Planter, with a view to salvaging the vessel.

The steamer, a 3000-ton Canadian National Steamship liner, is fast on Horseshoe Shoals, Vineyard Sound, where she was grounded after a collision with the steamer City of Auckland. The damaged cargo of hides, wool and coffee was being shipped to New Bedford.

Driver Hurt Badly By Milk Horse Kick

Kicked by his horse today, Marshall Eagles, 29, of 31 Cedar street, Mattapan, suffered a fractured pelvis and is in serious condition at City Hospital.

Eagles, driver for the Whiting Milk Company, which owned the horse that ran away yesterday in the Back Bay, was watering his horse, "Dandy," today in the company barn in Wyola place, Dorchester, when the animal shied and kicked.

Boat Thief Jailed

Joseph Rezewski, alias Joseph Bassin, 27, of Middle street, South Boston, was sentenced to nine months in the House of Correction in Lynn court today for larceny of a motorboat.

THE SENATOR

Curley Whets Firing Axe On Budget

The Senator unhooks his hard skimmer when he comes in and he lays it down on the bar and he looks at it with no little doubt. Then he shivers a bit and he claps it back on his noggin and he orders one straight.

"On Saturday and Sunday, Timmie," says The Senator, "I steam underneath this iron hat, and on Monday and Tuesday I freeze and I am glad it is not a hay skimmer of the summertime, and with all these hot winds blowing one day and cold winds the next, it is a very pretty pass, I assure you."

THE SENATOR

"But today, Senator, is Wednesday," remarks Timmie, "and so what do you do on Wednesday?"

The Senator motions toward his favorite bottle and then he says:

"Well, it is this way, Timmie. Between the hot winds and the cold winds I do not know where I am at, and in this respect I am not unlike Governor Jim, who is suffering from hot winds and cold winds yet on his budget, although for the most part they are cold.

"Along this line, Timmie, I hear, however, that Governor Jim sharpens up his firing axe for wielding if the voting on his budget in the Senate is not right-all-righto."

With this The Senator pauses to inhale about two fingers of what Timmie has poured, and then The Senator resumes:

McKEOWN GETS CHANCE

"For one thing, Timmie, I hear that Senator Frank McKeown of Springfield gets a whisper that unless he votes right on restoration of $1,600,000 in the budget for the public works department, off comes the re-appointment head of Will Hayes of Springfield as chairman of the ABC commission.

"McKeown is one of five Democratic senators who thus far have ridden along with the G. O. P. senators in nose-and-finger wagging at the budget as Governor Jim wants it. And these five senators probably look to next fall's elections, with some of them dependent on Republican votes to win."

"So Governor Jim goes after them right where they live, Senator, and lops off their men again?" asks Timmie.

"This is the sense of it, Timmie," agrees The Senator, "and many times this kind of politics is effective in holding the mavericks in line. Ah well, Timmie."

The Senator heaves a deep sigh in this fashion, but he brightens up when he finishes the other two fingers of his redeye and he says:

SCRAMBLE FOR JOB

"I also hear today, Timmie, that there probably is quite a scramble coming for the late Frank Campbell's job as clerk of superior court, and that Representative Tom Dorgan of Dorchester, who fathered the Teachers' Oath Law, is due to announce his candidacy for the job in a day or two."

Timmie is filling The Senator's glass again, and this is a very touchy business which must be done right up to the level and with The Senator looking close, so Timmie does not remark anything. When this is finished, The Senator says:

"In a skip down to Maine, Timmie, watch also for an announcement in a day or so that Governor Jim's candidate for Congress in the second district, has succeeded in getting another $5,000,000 for the Quoddy project.

"Of course, Timmie, I get this only as a whisper and I give it to you for what it is worth, but the way I get it is that the quiet promise of the five million fish is what lures him back to politics after his announcement that he would return to law practice."

FIVE MILLION FISH

"Five million fish, Senator," remarks Timmie, "could lure me even to take the pledge."

"I should like to arrange that, Timmie," grins The Senator, "but you come a little high and besides I can recall a few mornings when only remorse could have done the trick.

"However, Timmie, another report I hear is that Bill Hassan, who is the son of Lawyer Ed Hassan of Mattapan, one of Governor Jim's closest friends, goes out for the Democratic nomination for the Legislature in Ward 18 in September. Bill is now studying law at Harvard, and they tell me he has a silver tongue."

"You should know, Senator," says Timmie.

"Thanks, Timmie; thank you for the compliment to The Senator, but any silver tongue I may possess at times can be attributed mainly to your golden fluid."

With this The Senator holds up his glass and looks at it, but the golden fluid has all vanished, and with a sigh The Senator puts the glass down and waves good bye.

U. S. Reds Incite Palestine Terror

Who and what are behind the bloody attacks on the Jewish colonists in Palestine where a reign of terror with many casualties is now in its third week?

The Palestine government, in an effort to crush the general strike declared by Arab agitators, has seized 76 Communists and is holding some of them for deportation.

The entire Jewish community in the United States is deeply aroused by the evidence from Palestine that local agents of the Communist International have been inciting the Arabs to make a pogrom on the Jewish population and to bar the Jews from the Holy Land.

In a series of articles, of which this is the fourth, Isaac Don Levine presents the facts surrounding the Communist policy to promote civil war in Palestine.

ARTICLE FOUR

Under the title, "The Daily Worker, the Freiheit and the Events in Palestine," the following editorial appeared on April 27 in the Jewish Daily Forward, a Jewish newspaper with a large circulation:

Astonished as we are by the activity of the Communist incendiaries in Palestine, let us not overlook the incendiary work conducted by their comrades here in America, in New York.

The Communists in New York are like the Communists in Palestine—bugs who carry fire to burning Jewish homes which they had helped set ablaze.

In the midst of the pogrom which they themselves had helped incite, the Communists of Palestine have issued French proclamations in which they appeal to the Arabs to annihilate the Jewish settlement, to massacre the Jews who are already in the land, and to shut the gates to new Jewish immigrants.

Red Press Aids

And in the midst of the same pogrom, the Communist press in America publishes reports according to which the Arabs should get prompt help in their Holy War of destruction against the Jews.

"The British police," reports the Daily Worker of April 22, "has murdered eight Arabs and wounded 34 when the long-awaited Arab general strike for national independence commenced . . . the general strike was called to compel the government to stop Jewish immigration and the sale of land to Jews. About 25,000 Arab peasants have been driven from the land since 1933."

So, it is not an instigated attack. It is not a fabricated pogrom on Jews, but a general strike for national independence, for the defense of the poor Arab peasants against the Jewish robbers!

It is a report drawn literally in the same way in which Hitler's newspapers in Germany, the anti-Semitic press of Poland and of other countries, have reported the same pogrom.

It is exactly the way the Freiheit reported the pogrom of 1929 in Palestine. The Freiheit dares not falsify today the news from Palestine, remembering well the effects of 1929. It is a role which has been assigned to the Daily Worker.

Both in word and in spirit, the Communists here are reiterating the contents of the Communist proclamations in Palestine calling for pogroms.

But if the Daily Worker is more insolent than the Freiheit, it is in accord with the new policy of our Communists to print their most malicious anti-Jewish stuff in the English language. The English column of the Freiheit is the anti-Semetic department of that paper.

Bar Hatred

It is a column which prints the worst matter, the most stupid insinuations against the Jews to be found in any anti-Semetic literature. On the eve of the recent Jewish holiday, Streicher's newspaper in Germany argued with quotations from Jewish lore that the Jews were pogrom makers. And the English column of the Freiheit did likewise. It also took occasion to declare, for the benefit of those who do not read Jewish, that the Hebrew schools teach Jewish children to hate Gentiles!

We know from history that such false denunciations and charges against Jews have always been the stock in trade of all anti-Semites. It would of course be futile to argue with the Communists, to point out to them that all religious Jews are obliged to begin their prayers with a blessing for the welfare of all nations.

It would be futile to stress the fact that in spite of all the persecution suffered by the Jews there is not a single book in the entire Jewish literature which is a work of hatred.

It will be enough to point out that even in the face of the terrible attack against Jews in Germany in our own day there are no Jews who entertain any hatred for the German people.

We are emphasizing all this because the time has come to make note of the fact that the Communists, not only in connection with the Palestinian troubles, but from day to day, everywhere are carriers of poison and arson in our midst.

New Riddle

And how long will it be before even the blind amongst us will perceive this fact? In all the Democratic countries, the Communists have long since been ejected beyond the pale of the labor movements and all progressive elements, as in Great Britain, in the Scandinavian countries and in the American labor world.

But there are still people in our midst who are not ashamed to fraternize with them, even now, in the days when the press reports pogrom proclamations drafted by Communist hands. There are still persons who are not ashamed to speak of the united front with them and who are planning to join their May Day demonstration.

Last Saturday, The Day, on the front page wrote: Communists renew their incitement against Jews in Palestine." And on the third page the same newspaper advocated a united front with them on the first of May! How can one "join hands" with pogrom-makers whose hand had just penned a call to massacres?

It is indeed a riddle in psychology why we have fallen so low morally, we more so than the rest of the labor movement. But there are signs that the Jewish public is beginning to recover from this disease.

"We Analyze Our Local Markets"

The Significant Story of a Sales Success!

Selected because SCHENLEY "analyzes local markets," the Boston Evening American has led all New England newspapers in SCHENLEY advertising for 1935 . . . and for the first three months of 1936.

During 1935 two of the brands advertised went from scratch to FIRST and SECOND place in sales . . . certainly an outstanding accomplishment.

Other SCHENLEY brands featured in the Boston Evening American have also been rated as sales successes.

SCHENLEY'S success in Boston and New England proves that New England's Greatest Evening Newspaper "carries the message to the people you want when you want to reach them" . . . and that these people are responsive buyers.

The Boston Evening American, With 260,723 Circulation, Has Over 80,000 More Circulation Than Any Other Boston Evening Newspaper

JURORS CALL MAYOR KNOX IN PROBE

Mayor Leslie E. Knox of Somerville was notified today to appear before the Middlesex County Grand Jury in connection with charges made by his former campaign aide, John D. McCarthy, of 2 Ossippee road, Somerville.

A similar notification was sent to McCarthy.

McCarthy charged that Mayor Knox, in his election returns on expenses, violated the general laws governing election expenditures.

This action was taken after Assistant-District Attorney William G. Andrew exonerated the mayor but informed McCarthy that he could still bring action.

Democrats Must Play "Solomon"

The Democratic state commitee may have to decide the winner in the election for delegate from Ward 4, Waltham.

A recount showed that Edward F. Flannery and Edmund S. Haverty received an equal number of votes and each has refused to quit in favor of the other. Hence the Solomon-like decision required of the state committee.

Last Day's Mail in Bankroll Contest

This picture can only give you an idea of how much mail has poured into the Boston Evening American since it started the "Bankroll Guessing Contest." This batch is merely the final day's mail since the contest has been ended. Contestants tried to guess the size that Ann Marsters' bankroll will be after she finishes betting on the horses on May 16. She started in with $500. Top prize is $100. Peggy Lane, Mary Bunton and Honore Doyle look on at the mail they must go through.

WOMAN IS HELD FOR ARSON

Gloucester, May 6—Mrs. Marion Saunders Robertson, 24, of Mount Ann road, West Gloucester, who was released from the State Hospital at Danvers today to appear in court, pleaded not guilty to arson. Judge William J. Hatch held her for the grand jury in $1000.

She was released on bail supplied by Miss Grace MacKenzie of Essex.

According to the police, Mrs. Robertson set fire to her father's home in New Way lane, West Gloucester, last month.

Kilroy Baby Has Pneumonia Attack

Little Mary Ann Kilroy, 18-months-old daughter of City Councillor and Mrs. James J. Kilroy of Ward 11, Roxbury and Jamaica Plain, was rushed to City Hospital at noon today, suffering from lobar pneumonia.

Cardenas Better After Operation

Mexico City, May 6 (INS)—President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico was recovering today from an operation for appendicitis performed yesterday by Dr. Gustavo Baz.

The physician said the President's powerful constitution, developed by his fondness for swimming, stood him in good stead.

KING'S CASH OPPOSED

Scots Want Economy for Edward

London, May 6 (AP)—King Edward VIII had today $410,000 (approximately $2,052,000), granted by the House of Commons to pay the bills of the British royal family.

The grant, to be voted annually, was opposed sharply by left wing laborites who criticised both the expenses of King Edward and his relatives and the British monarchial system.

King Edward's position was called "a purely decorative job and a symbol of exploitation and robbery," by J. McGovern, a Scottish representative.

"There are £70,000 ($350,000) for the queen mother, whereas widows of the working class receive from 7 shillings 6 pence to 7 shillings 6 pence a week," declared George D. Hardie, another Scottish member, in reference to Queen Mary.

Sir Stafford Cripps, in a debate with Lady Astor, contrasted the high cost of the throne in England with the expenses of the American presidency. Lady Astor claimed that in American opinion there were no aristocrats in Great Britain. Sir Stafford has heaped scorn on aristocrats.

Beauty Indicted In Lottery Probe

A 23-year-old blonde beauty, winner of a number of bathing beauty contests, has been secretly indicted by the federal grand jury, it was learned today.

She is one of a group of 25 men and women indicted in the wholesale probe of lotteries and sweepstakes which has been going on for months.

More indictments are expected, Assistant U. S. Attorney Harry M. Leen indicated, but the lotteries probe has been temporarily interrupted to allow the grand jury to consider the alleged $300,000 "laundered" revenue stamps racket.

Beatrice Harraden, Authoress, Dies, 72

London, May 6 (AP)—Beatrice Harraden, 72, author of "Ships That Pass in the Night," "Youth Calling" and other novels, died yesterday at Barton on Sea, Dorset. She was unmarried.

CHELSEA LINK WITH EL NEAR

Approval of the purchase by the Boston Elevated of the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway was indicated today after a meeting of the State public utilities commisson.

The purchase price has been set at $1,500,000. The purchase means a 10 cent fare for Revere residents to any part of the El system.

Utilities commissioners met today on the urging of Governor Curley, who asked an immediate decision. The formal statement of the board was expected late today.

Hit-Run Kills Hitch-Hiker

Rochester, N. Y., May 6 (INS)—Elmer Rancour, 22, of the Bronx, New York city, a hitch-hiker, was killed by a hit-run driver near Batavia, N. Y., today.

Parts that do not move cannot wear or become noisy
THAT'S WHY ELECTROLUX Stays Silent
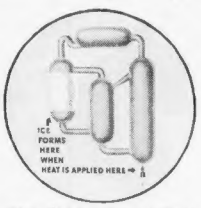
Its basically different operating method also offers longer life and more lasting satisfaction

THERE'S a lot more to the silence of Electrolux than comfort—although that's an advantage you'll appreciate more and more every day. The reason for this silence . . . a different, simpler operating method . . . is the reason for other, and even more important, exclusive advantages of Electrolux.

NO MOVING PARTS

The fewer moving parts a refrigerator has, the better, for all such parts are subject to friction and wear. Electrolux actually has no moving parts! A tiny gas flame circulates a simple refrigerant, and the laws of nature do the rest. By being alternately heated and cooled, this refrigerant produces ice and constant cold without sound, force, or wear.



This simplified diagram shows why Electrolux needs no moving parts. Parts that do not move cannot wear. This means more years of service . . . less depreciation.

THREE BIG SAVINGS

Let's look at this simplicity in terms of your own pocketbook. Naturally it means an unusually low operating cost . . . practical freedom from deterioration . . . and complete food protection at all times.

These are very real and very worthwhile savings—important enough to actually pay for your Electrolux over a reasonable period. Thus in Electrolux you get an unbeatable combination of silent comfort and operating efficiency, year in, year out.

A NATIONAL TREND

If you know an Electrolux owner, you know how enthusiastic all owners are about this remarkable refrigerator, and you know why the popularity of Electrolux has become a nation-wide trend. We believe you'll share this enthusiasm once you see Electrolux and get the whole story. Go to your Gas Company or gas appliance dealer. Ask for a demonstration. It will cost you nothing, and may save you a lot of money during the coming years. Budget terms are extremely liberal—less than fifteen cents a day.

Lecture on Gardens at Vendome; Junior Leaguers in Concert

By BETTY ALDEN

JUST A YEAR AGO today the citizens of Great Britain began the Jubilee celebration which marked the 25th year of the reign of King George . . . and last evening many Bostonians were reminded of the picturesque celebration by Mrs. John Carroll Perkins, who gave the first in a series of lectures on English Gardens at the Hotel Vendome . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins were living in an old English village, Chipping-Campden, at the time of the Jubilee, and actually took part in many of the interesting fetes in honor of the King and Queen . . . Mrs. Perkins prefaced her lecture about the gardens with a few very amusing and enlightening anecdotes about the events of Jubilee Day in the outlying districts of England . . .

Later when she began to describe the colorful English gardens which were so beautifully illustrated on the screen, one could almost imagine the audience was sniffing to catch fragrant whiffs of the English lavender and climbing roses which abound on such famous estates as Glamis Castle, the home of the Countess of Strathmore, mother of the Duchess of York, or the more intimate and homey gardens of Madame de Navarro (Mary Anderson) at Court Farm Broadway . . .

MARY OLDER

In the large audience which was so thoroughly charmed by the lecture and pictures were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eliot Ware, Jr., whose daughter, "Sister" Ware, was one of the young ushers . . . "Sister" wore a vivid garden print with flame carnations on a black background and a wide sash and slippers repeating the flame color . . . Mrs. George Parker, gowned in violet, accompanied the Wares, as did another daughter, Alice Ware, and Miss Mary Lee Ware and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ware . . .

Miss Mary O. Porter, who was for many years custodian of the debutante list, and her sister, Miss Frances R. Porter, greeted everyone at the door . . . Miss Mary Porter wore a jacket gown of emerald lace and her sister was gowned in black velvet . . .

Though she is just starting the post debutante chapter in her memory book, Mary Pickering Older knows a lot about gardening and was particularly appreciative of the evening's entertainment . . . She and Martha Billings, Esther Binney and Frances Lowell were "Sister" Ware's right hand aids when it came to ushering . . .

Among others present were Mrs. William Stanley Parker, Miss Alice Stackpole who wore a filmy gown of brown lace, Mr. and Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, the latter gowned in fine black lace trimmed with a wide sash of baby blue and shell pink satin . . . Mr. and Mrs. Horace Binney, Miss Marian Blake, Mrs. Arthur Hooper in black chiffon, Miss Mabel Jones, also in black with a silver fox scarf, Mrs. Harold G. Cutler, a short ermine cape over her black gown, Miss Ellen Guild whose bronze metal cloth gown was set off with a beautiful necklace of jade, Mrs. Robert Farley Clark and Mrs. Henry Wheeler . . .

Junior League Glee Club in Concert

AT 8:30 O'CLOCK last evening the girls of the Junior League Glee Club were quite nervous as they awaited their curtain call . . . For though they have had plenty of practice singing to shutins at hospitals and settlement houses all winter, this was the first time they were to give a concert for their own relatives and friends in the Junior League ballroom . . .

And to add to their apprehension, they must needs hold their own against the well-trained male chorus from Harvard's Leverett House which joined them for the occasion . . .

As in most cases of pre-curtain stage fright, however, their fears were ungrounded, and the concert was a grand success with the boys and girls singing together in perfect harmony under the leadership of Howard Abell . . .

Some artistic member of the league devised tricky little costumes for the girls, to make them look more uniform as they stood on the platform . . . and the little short apple green silk capes they all slipped on over their own simple black dinner gowns, harmonized perfectly with the ivory and green decorations of the ballroom . . .

Rosamond Pier in Bright Green Velvet

BETTY WATSON and May Gilbert both sang solos with their proud mothers listening in from the audience . . . Mrs. Watson wore a lovely gown of American beauty chiffon and Mrs. E. Fenton Gilbert chose a gown of dahlia taffeta with bands of quilting over the shoulders . . .

Rosamond Pier dropped in to hear the songsters, and wore a most becoming frock of bright green velvet with long sleeves and a lot of shirring in the back . . .

Mrs. Howard Plimpton, was another doting mother present to hear her debutante daughter who has covered herself with glory in all kinds of Junior League activities this winter . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Little attended to hear Mimi and her friends raise their voices in song . . . Mrs. Little wore an attractive gown of pale blue and white with a brocaded wrap . . . Still others present were Josephine Emery, Margaret Kenderdine, Mr. and Mrs. Atherton Loring, Jr., Amy Lang, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weeks and Mrs. William King . . .

MRS. LESLIE SOULE ANN M. SOULE

TAKING THE HINT from the success of father and son golf and tennis tournaments, Mrs. Leslie Soule of Dedham and her post debutante daughter, Ann M. Soule, have formed a mother and daughter team to work together for their favorite charity.

Civic Duty Topic at Meeting

MRS. J. GARDNER BRADLEY is chairman of the hostesses which will serve tea immediately after the first annual meeting of the Community Federation of Boston to be held in the Lee Auditorium of the Boston Y. M. C. A. on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 12.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick M. Eliot, minister of Unity Church in St. Paul, Minn., will speak on "Civic Responsibility—Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

Dr. Paul, son of the Rev. Dr. Christopher R. Eliot, is a native of Dorchester, a graduate of Harvard College and the Harvard Divinity School, and former associate of Dr. Samuel McCord Crothers at the First Parish Church in Cambridge. For a number of years he has been active in social service organizations and the Community Chest of St. Paul.

Ripley L. Dana, general chairman of the 1936 Community Fund Campaign, and Charles M. Rogerson, chairman of the Federation budget committee, will discuss the issues now confronting the federation.

Assisting Mrs. Bradley at the tea tables will be Mrs. George F. Bemis, Mrs. Hyman Freiman, Mrs. William V. McDermott and Mrs. John C. Palfrey.

Head Ushers For New Show

Polly and Isabel Gardner, head ushers at the opening performance of Mrs. Lars Anderson's new musical comedy, "Tahiti Ho," at the Repertory Theater tomorrow evening, have selected as their assistants Elizabeth Jaques, Ledlie Laughlin, Alice Merriam and Barbara Brewer.

Mrs. Edward J. Holmes, who is in charge of the group of ushers for the second performance on Friday evening, will have as her assistants Betty Cutler, Patience Widger, Ella Rood, Jane Bryant and Priscilla Nickerson.

As the title "Tahiti Ho" would indicate, the locale of the play is in the South Sea Islands, and to carry out the effect a tropical garden will be erected in the foyer of the theater. South Sea drinks bearing such odd names as Dr. Funk's Cocoanut Drinks, Pineapple Delight, and Rainbow Punch will be served.

And instead of the customary flower girls Elizabeth Howlett, Polly Bowen and Harriet Innes will sell tiny bunches of miniature bananas to be pinned on Milady's shoulder.

DINNERS PLANNED

ALMOST EVERYONE in Cambridge will be either entertaining dinner parties or dining out, on Friday evening, before the annual Cambridge Assembly at the Hotel Continental.

The dance benefits the Cambridge Hospital League.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Toppan will set places for a number of friends including, Mr. and Mrs. Grafton B. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Newbegin, Edward K. Newbegin, and his fiancee, Miss Kitty Hovenden. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Carl Erslund, Mr. Edward S. Read, Mr. Theodore B. Pitman Jr., and Mr. Henry S. Pinkham.

A group of debutantes will be the guests of Miss Lois Tanner Green at a dinner which her parents, Judge and Mrs. Louis Lawrence Green, are giving for her at the Copley-Plaza. Miss Louise English and Miss Elizabeth Marion will be escorted by George Hedblom, William M. Judd and Peter C. Monks.

Logic Needed in Leading

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An opening lead that makes a difference of three tricks on a vulnerable doubled contract for only one odd must be very badly selected.

That was the case in a hand I recently witnessed in a New York club.

The opening leader blindly followed the general philosophy of leading his partner's suit instead of applying logic to a specific situation.

South, Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

	♠ 10 9 8 7 5 ♡ A 6 5 3 ◇ 7 4 ♣ J 2
♠ K Q J 6 ♡ K 9 4 ◇ A J 3 ♣ 10 5 3		♠ 4 2 ♡ — ◇ 9 8 6 5 2 ♣ Q 9 8 7 6 4
	♠ A 4 ♡ Q J 10 8 7 3 ◇ K Q 10 ♣ A K

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

West could have rescued himself from the dangerous situation created by South's takeout double, by the simple expedient of bidding one notrump over it, anticipating a possible leave-in by North.

When he failed to do so, East could hardly risk increasing the contract by a "stab" rescue with either minor suit. Besides, his heart void and two trump were reasonable support, he thought.

As it turned out, he was right! North's leave-in of the take-out double, was shrewd, despite his four hearts, because of his own non-vulnerability against West's vulnerability.

North's opening lead of the heart Ace however, was far from shrewd. Since the declarer had contracted for only seven tricks, it was extremely unwise to plan to "ruff him down" with heart leads. With a quadruple sequence in trumps, North had everything to gain and nothing to lose by attacking the trump suit itself.

Dummy ruffed the heart Ace and led a diamond to declarer's Ace for the cashing of the heart King and the ruffing of the other heart loser. After that, declarer simply waited for the defenders to lead spades—by this means he made his three top trumps.

Obviously on the proper opening of a trump, dummy's ruffing power would have been reduced to nil and in addition, declarer's King of hearts would not have been established. In short, a three trick penalty, 800 points, instead of a fulfilled contract would have resulted.

Widows and Workingmen Trusted in Schwellenbach

Woman Asks For Justice

STOCK BUYERS REVEAL SAD STORIES

Seattle, May 6—When the Superior Service Laundries cleaned them they stayed clean.

This might have been the business slogan of the "coast-wide" laundry chain organized several years ago by United States Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach along with a baffling maze of holding and subsidiary companies.

But instead it was the plaint of the people who listened to the eloquent sales talks of Schwellenbach and his colleagues and entrusted their money to him.

The record written by their letters in the files of the State Department of Licenses in Olympia is a pathetic tale of widows and working men who thought they were "investing" their savings when they let loose of them.

"THE LAUNDRY-MAN"—This is the title of U. S. Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach won during the Washington State Senatorial campaign of 1934 as opponents referred to his activity in promoting a laundry chain in which the stockholders were the ones who got cleaned.

One of these letters from Mrs. Stella H. Simpson, of Tacoma, a widow in poor health, with a child to support, so aroused the State Department that it appealed to Schwellenbach personally to see that justice was done.

Blamed Others

But Schwellenbach evaded the responsibility with a remarkable letter in which he admitted Mrs. Simpson had been victimized, but declared it was the fault of another company. Then he naively admitted that the same men ran both companies.

The way Mrs. Simpson lost her money was this:

She agreed verbally to buy five shares of Superior Service Laundries stock and paid for one of them. Then she tried to get the one share for which she had paid. She could not get it and wrote the Department of Licenses.

'Could Do Nothing'

The department investigated and wrote Schwellenbach, who asserted that, inasmuch as the stock had been brought from the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Co., nothing could be done about it, although he admitted "the officers of the companies were interested in both companies."

A letter from Robert A. Renn, of Malden, Wash., to the department enclosed a $5 dividend check he had received from the Superior Service Laundries on an investment of $2500. He also got two checks for twenty cents each on investments of $200 for each of his children.

Renn was enraged at the small return on so large an investment. But it was nothing to his rage when he went to a bank with his pittance.

Supe rior Soft Laundries Inc
Tacoma, Dec.8, 1927

State Corporation Commission
Olympia, Washington

Gentlemen:

Will you please note attached file and advise me if you think it will be possible to make the Superior Service Laundry people issue me the one share of stock for which I have already paid, and to cancel my subscription to the other four?

The stock was misrepresented to me, as I wanted to buy one share at a time. But I was told that it could not be obtained except in five-share allotments. When I took the matter up with the people in Tacoma who then had the sale of S.S.Laundry stock, after Mr. Sandbank had taken leave, I learned that I really could have bought the stock a share at a time as I wished to do. They, however, did nothing about the matter, and as they are no longer concerned with the stock, they referred me to you. It seems that Mr. Jacobus, of the Brotherhood Bank could do something about it, but he is not on friendly termsnwith the S.S.Laundry Corporation and probably could do nothing either.

I did subscribe for five shares of this stock - but signed nothing to bind myself to any specified payments, or at any specified time. As per file attached, I absolutely cannot make further payments on this stock.

My health is very poor; I have no income except a small salary; I am a widow; and have a small son to support.

Will you please advise me?

Youre very truly,
Mrs Stella H. Simpson

A WIDOW'S MITE—Mrs. Stella H. Simpson of Tacoma, Wash., was just wasting her time when she appealed in this letter for justice in a deal over some of U. S. Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach's sack. The Washington Secretary of State's office wrote a strong plea to Schwellenbach in the widow's behalf, but he dismissed it on a technicality.

December 13, 1927

Mr. J. G. Rake
Secretary of State's Office
Olympia, Washington

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of December 10 in reference to the request of Mrs. Stella H. Simpson.

We have had a number of similar cases in which we have attempted to persuade the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company to cancel the stock subscription and issue a certificate for the amount which had been paid, and in each instance they have refused to make such an adjustment. I happen to know that it was the practice of that company prior to April of this year to accommodate their stockholders, and further that they had no rule under which it was necessary to sell in five share allotments, and that Mr. Sanford's statement that they had set aside the stock is inconsistent with a number of letters, copy of which we have, to the effect that they might not be able to carry out their agreement to furnish stock, and further inconsistent with the fact that they have picked up on the market since this controversy arose quite a number of shares of stock, presumably at a low price. We have had similar requests on the part of stockholders who have purchased from us direct and in each instance we have attempted to make a adjustment and so far as I know we have made such adjustments in each instance.

The stock of Superior Service Laundries, Inc. was sold in a block to the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company. Unfortunately we have no written contract as the officers of both companies were interested in both companies and it did not seem necessary. I therefore am afraid that it will not be possible for us to help this lady and could suggest that you take it up directly with the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company.

Yours truly,

LBS:F

JUST TOO BAD—That was the essence of U. S. Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach's reply to the appeal of a Tacoma, Wash., widow who could not get the stock she paid for in one of his companies because another one sold it to her. Schwellenbach admitted the facts were misrepresented to her and that both companies were run by the same officers. But it was still too bad.

Tax Association To Hold Meetings

Preliminary to a hearing before a legislative committee, the Building Industry Tax Limit Association plans a series of meetings in large centers throughout the state in the interest of the real estate tax limit which it is fostering.

The association, with headquarters at 376 Boylston street, is making a study of tax limit laws of other states in preparation for the time when its own body will be completely organized.

Drop in Milk Price Expected Friday

Move for reduction in the price of milk is expected to be made Friday following the order of the state milk control board, reducing the retail price of cream an average of one cent per half-pint jar.

Lowering prices of cream were ordered following reductions in cost of wholesale cream. Further decrease may be made later this spring.

Brighton Club Plans Excursion

A several days' tour of Washington, Norfolk, Jamestown, Georgetown, Baltimore, Annapolis and New York will be made by 100 members of the Brighton Women's Club.

The group will embark May 15 on the Eastern Steamships Lines New York. Mrs. Richard H. Walsh is president and Mrs. James H. Muldoon of Atkins street, Brighton, is chairman of the committee.

BAR AT RITES FOR CAMPBELL

Headed by Governor Curley, city and state officials, judges and hundreds of friends and relatives today paid final tribute to Francis A. Campbell, 71, clerk of the Suffolk Superior Civil Court.

High mass of requiem was sung in St. Ignatius Chapel, Boston College. Rev. Charles E. Lane, S. J., was celebrant; Rev. John Keating, S. J., deacon; Rev. William Lougue, sub-deacon.

More than 100 automobiles were in the funeral procession, and followed the body to its final resting place in Calvary Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Present at services and acting as honorary pallbearers were Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall and Justices James H. Fiske, Nelson P. Brown, Joseph Walsh, Frank J. Donahue, Daniel T. O'Connell, Winfred Gray, John M. Gibbs, Edwin F. Hanify, Abraham Pinanski, John E. Swift, all of the superior court; Judges Charles S. Sullivan and Michael Sullivan of the district court.

Active pallbearers were John F. Murphy, Dr. Augustin J. Bulger, William J. Dooley, Lee A. Reed, Daniel J. McDonald, John L. Macenbley, James Campbell and Edward G. Morrisey.

Serving as ushers were James F. McDermott, Joseph E. Cochran, Logan McLean, John Keohane, William J. Crowhewell, John T. Hottenley, John F. Kennedy and James Hottomley.

Born in South Boston and educated at Boston Latin School, Mt. St. Mary's College and at Harvard Law School, he gained fame as a fighting attorney.

He was first elected Superior Court clerk in 1904 and won re-election in each succeeding contest.

Hunt Adder After It Poisons Owner

Montreal, May 6 (AP)—A black adder, on the loose after biting and poisoning its owner, brought a police guard to a house on McGill College avenue today and a summons for a snake charmer.

The reptile, which had been ill for some time, wriggled free while Edward Smith, a snake raiser from Schriever, La., was treating it last night, coiled about his left arm and bit him.

Smith was removed to a hospital where his left arm was amputated. Doctors, seeking to check the spread of poison through his system, said the trainer was in critical condition.

Police, standing guard outside Smith's room, said they were sure the adder was still there.

Thousands Honor Father Damien

Louvain, Belgium, May 6 (AP)—Father Damien, Belgium's famous "Leper Apostle" who spent most his life on the leper island of Molokai, Hawaiian Islands, was buried in a crypt here after laying in state at the Holy Heart Chapel.

Thousands filed past his coffin and prayed, a monument is being erected to his memory.

The priest died in his voluntary exile among the lepers of Kalawao Feb. 15, 1889, and the body was exhumed for the trip back to his homeland.

4 Youths Seized In Car Thief Trap

Haverhill, May 6—Trapped in the woods near Plaistow, N. H., four youths, one of whom was shot and slightly wounded in the capture, faced arraignment here today on charges of stealing seven cars since Sunday.

A fifth youth, who made his escape when the police of this city and Plaistow set the trap in the woods, is being sought.

The wounded youth, police said, is expected to be discharged from Gale Hospital today.

Sue Over Hides

Salem, May 6—Alleged negligence which resulted in the destruction of valuable hides is the basis for a $25,000 suit filed in Superior court by the Dieta Kid Company of Lynn against John Samara, formerly employed as a foreman.

Mail to Junior Birdmen, Boston American Wing, 100 Summer St., Boston, Mass.

All Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen are invited to visit the hangars of the American Airlines, Inter-City Airlines and Shobe Airlines at Boston Municipal Airport, Saturday, in the observance of "Junior Birdmen Day."

George Mason, representing the three companies, extended the invitation to members of the Boston wing. The visit will bring to a close the observance of "Junior Birdmen Week" proclaimed by Governor Curley in recognition of the organization's second birthday anniversary.

Saturday is expected to provide the opportunity for Junior Birdmen to see aircraft and other equipment at these hangars new to their eyes. This equipment will probably include a Bellanca Airbus, a Northrup that makes 200 miles an hour, a fully-equipped Stinson and a Travelair seaplane.

"HANDS OFF" RULE

Commanders are expected to lead their units in this visitation and in making the rounds of the hangars caution their members to observe the rule of keeping hands off props, wings, tools and all other equipment.

NEW BEDFORD POW-WOW

A pow-wow will be staged Sunday at 82 Bedford street, New Bedford. Hosts are members of the Col. Lewis Squadron.

All Squadron commanders in New Bedford and vicinity are invited to help organize and carry out a summer program to see if a city banner can be obtained.

Vernon Silva, Rod Frawley, Jr., Richard Bonnette, William Boyle, Ernest Souza, Norman Hathaway, Albert Desrosiers, Frank Aleman and George Fontaine.

Miner Brings Aid to Trapped Mates

Scranton, Pa., May 6 (AP)—An unnamed miner was credited with bringing rescuers to 17 on his mates trapped by fire in the De Angelus mine at Simpson.

Fire at the inside face of the tunnel spread smoke that forced 18 men back into the workings. One of them, whose identity was not learned, made a dash through the fire and escaped to the surface.

Rescuers he guided entered a new shaft into the main tunnel and led the men out.

8000 Jobs Await Relief Recipients

Joy supplanted despair in thousands of homes in Massachusetts WPA workers today when it became known that now more than 8000 jobs will be provided for those who are to be dropped from relief payrolls between now and July 1.

The action was the result of a conference between Governor Curley and federal and local officials at the State House.

500 Weapons Found In Prison Search

Jackson, Mich., May 6 (AP)—Southern Michigan prison guards, in a surprise search early today, seized 500 knives, blackjacks and other weapons from the cell blocks. All of the weapons had been made from materials gathered by inmates from the prison industries, officials said.

HOLDEN DEFICIT PUT AT $26,000

Worcester, May 6. The shortage in the accounts of George H. Newell, former Holden tax collector, has now reached $26,000, it was said today by District Attorney Owen A. Hoben, who is preparing to place the matter before the grand jury next Monday.

This is more than double the alleged shortage first reported when Newell was brought back from Miami, Fla., declaring he had lost the money on the horses.

Newell is in Worcester County jail under $10,000 bonds, awaiting grand jury action.

Germ-Killing Rays Aid to Operations

Rochester, Minn., May 6 (AP)—Invention of a new type of cool germ-killing rays that destroys airfloating bacteria about the patient on an operating table was announced to the American Society of Thoracoplasty Surgeons here today by Deryl Hart of Duke University Medical School.

This is the first time that the air of an operating room has been continuously sterilized. It is the final step in safety from infection which began with Joseph Lister's inauguration of antiseptic surgery in 1865.

The rays come from long, slender tubes framing the light above the operating table. The tubes are cool, only eight to ten degrees above room temperature. Their rays are selected wave-lengths of ultra-violet—which kill air-borne germs in 60 seconds, but do not burn human beings.

MOTOR DEATHS REACH 66

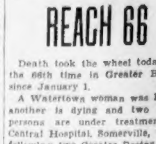
A Watertown woman was killed, another is dying and two other persons are under treatment in Central Hospital, Somerville, today following two Greater Boston auto accidents.

Mrs. Catherine Donovan, 39, of Oakley road, Watertown, became Greater Boston's 66th auto accident victim since the first of the year when she was struck and killed by an auto at Mount Auburn street and Templeton parkway.



Her companion, Mrs. Winifred Vahey, 39, of Richards road, critically injured, is dying at Cambridge City Hospital today.

The other accident occurred in Mystic avenue, Somerville, when a truck operated by Maxwell Gilman, Highland avenue, Malden was in collision with a machine driven by Brice J. Lipman, King avenue, Medford.

Gilman was pinned in the wreckage of the overturned truck, but was extricated from the wreckage and taken to Central Hospital for treatment.

Also at Central Hospital is Miss Helen Doody, 21, of Winthrop street, Medford, a passenger in Lipman's machine. She suffered severe cuts of the head and face.

Inquest Next Week In Shooting Death

Inquest into the death of Mrs. Lillian M. Fowler, 52, Malden widow, is to be held in Malden district court next week on a date to be determined today.

CHAPTER 38

Luana was delighted. But before she left the apartment, she took the precaution of burning the Colonel's letter in the kitchenette . . . She had become uncertain of Yvonne's attitude. Yvonne had shown herself extraordinarily inquisitive, lately.

Her spirits rose as they rattled through Harlem and out along Bronx River Parkway, so beautiful in its shimmering spring green.

And Lake Mahopac was lovelier than she had imagined. After their lunch, Jimmie and she found a mossy nook by the shores and talked for hours about their mutual future.

"Now I shall tell him!" thought Luana.

She Couldn't Talk

Tonight would be soon enough . . . on the way back, when it was getting dark . . . that would be easier.

Driving back, Jimmy was so radiant, and they had such fun together, that she simply couldn't spring the disturbing news.

He had such high ideals about women, about what was honorable and what wasn't, that she hesitated. She couldn't bear to have him disappointed in her. Tomorrow night would be soon enough.

But tomorrow night was the opening of a new show on Broadway, for which Mr. Quackenbush gave her two tickets.

"And go on up to the Parque afterwards, Luana. The actresses and the society folk will all be there. I want to put over the new sleeve and draping in the skirt. Wear the 'Blue Moon' gown."

Jimmy accompanied her, looking extraordinarily handsome in his evening clothes. With so many people around, she simply didn't have an opportunity in which to tell him. And later, Luana hesitated . . . procrastinated . . . put off telling him her big secret . . .

Jimmy was old-fashioned and resented her being starred at by Tom, Dick and Harry. But her job necessitated that she be stared at. There was no denying that the "Blue Moon" gown was extreme.

"Darling," he said to her on the Parque's terrace where they sat at supper, "if I could take you right out of all this, I'd be the happiest man in the world."

Marriage? He meant marriage? But how on earth could he do it on a shoe-string?

For supper was "on the house." Jimmy was not paying for it. That irked him. He was awfully independent. That he might be taken for a gigolo—for a chap like Ramon—worried him. It was only Luana's insistence, and the fact that Armand would accompany her if he wouldn't, that had brought him here tonight.

At the Studio

"Listen, Luana. I've an idea. Come over to my studio tomorrow evening and we'll work together on those sketches of clothes you had in mind."

"Right. I'd love to." She understood him. Understood that he wanted her to develop her dress-designing talent. Wanted her to have another and better iron in the fire than just modelling.

"The truth is, darling," she said quickly, "that you'd almost give your right arm to get me out of Quackenbush's? Or am I exaggerating?"

He grinned at her. "Wise child!"

* * *

Anything Jimmy Randolph said was right with her. Luana went at her sketches with a will. She curtailed her luncheon hour, and worked with her pad and pencils in the dressing-room of the shop, all through the enchanted week, so that she had something to show Jimmy in the evening.

"You've a grand color sense, Luana," he encouraged her when she brought her crayons to his studio. With Jimmy as mentor, she practised exotic color combinations on her designs for gowns.

"I'd love to open a shop of my own," she said, "where there'd be American styles for American women! When you think how they rush to Paris and fling thousands of good American dollars away on styles that are suited to the short-legged natives when right here in New York they could get clothes at half the price that would be specially planned for the American figure!"

"Bravo, Luana! Alia girl!"

"The American female figure is streamline, Jimmy. Not dumpy."

"Long and lithe and lovely, like yourself, in fact." He kissed her.

"I'm in dead earnest, Jimmy. If I could open a shop I'd soon get a vogue. I know what suits women. When the fat ones come into the salon, and insist on buying things that suit me and my type, I could scream my head off at them. Honest!"

She produced a new drawing. "I did that in my luncheon hour today. For an out-size! See the camouflage? See the long line that hides that curve?"

He laughed outright. "You might name it: 'Where Calories Are Not Counted'!"

But Luana was serious. "With the following I've got now, plus my acquaintance with the wholesale houses, I'd take the plunge right now if only I'd the capital . . ."

He smiled wryly. "Wouldn't we all!"

If he had money behind him, even a very little, Luana and he would marry immediately.

The second week was not so happy—although it began well.

On Sunday, Luana and he drove in the funny little borrowed car to Jones' Beach on Long Island and ventured into the water—which was chilly but exhilarating.

On the way home they had a delicious dinner of Long Island dunkling at a roadhouse, and were very happy after their long day together.

Tuesday night they dined again at the little roof restaurant on Central Park South. The baritone sang the same love songs, and the violinist played with the same fervor, and the chicken was equally good.

But Jimmy was worried.

A pompous letter from Mr. Wallace Briscoe, received that morning, had informed him that the exchange to Paris had been arranged, and a second-class reservation had been booked for him on a liner scheduled to sail at 10 o'clock on Saturday.

That meant only three more evenings with Luana!

He tried to tell her about it, but he was tongue-tied.

"Jimmy, let's go to a movie." Dinner was over.

"Darling, let's go in the Park. I have to talk to you. I have an awful lot to say to you. Let's sit by the Japanese Lake and watch the reflections of the stars in the water."

"Why so poetic?" But she loved the poetry in Jimmy. Arm-in-arm, they walked under the trees and down to a secluded bench beneath a blossoming hawthorn.

He drew a long breath, but didn't look at her. "Saturday morning I sail for Paris."

An incredulous: "What?"

He said dully: "It's quite true."

She breathed: "You're going to be away long?"

"A three months' course, Luana."

A silence that was heavy as lead lay between them.

"Might I ask why you've kept this back? Why you didn't tell me before?"

NOEL'S 'MYSTERY' HINTS OF RIFT IN ROMANCE

CHAPTER 2

"THAT'S queer," Dicky said as he watched Mary and Noel coming across the orchard toward my studio bungalow, "their coming out here together."

There was a distinctly worried note in his voice, and his bewilderment found an echo in my mind, though I knew better than to voice it.

But why in the world, I asked myself, should not Mary and Noel, whose wedding day was only six months past, come to the farm together?

He paused for a fraction of a second, ran his fingers through his hair, as if, with the gesture, he could arrange his thoughts, and went on swiftly.

"A couple of days ago, a chap I know, who lives in a apartment down in the Gramercy park section, came to see me, hemming and hawing—he was horribly embarrassed about butting in—but finally telling me that he thought I ought to know about Noel.

"It seems that two weeks ago Noel rented an apartment directly over this chap's and moved in with a lot of luxurious and expensive furniture. Noel didn't appear during the moving in process—an old man and woman attended to all the details, and then disappeared. But Noel came back immediately afterward and has been there ever since, coming in about 10 in the morning and staying until about 9 at night, having his meals sent in.

MARY IN TEARS

"I thought perhaps the boy had had an attack of temperamental genius and had provided himself a retreat for composing his sonatas or what-have-you's. But my friend told me that though there was a grand piano in the apartment, it had not sounded once, but that his wife was being driven nearly crazy because Noel rarely stopped striding up and down the apartment, for all the world like a caged animal in its cell."

"They're almost here," I warned, after a swift glance out of the window.

"And I'm almost through," Dicky said. "I beat it at once up to Noel and Mary's apartment, not intending to ask any brash questions, but to sound out the atmosphere. Mary had been crying, and there was a desolate air about the whole place.

"But she's game, you know, said she'd been in tears because of a toothache, and that she must get away to the dentist. I never was eased out of a situation more deftly and swiftly. Do you wonder that I'm surprised at seeing them here together?"

I had no opportunity to answer his query, for Mary and Noel already had reached the door, and Noel's knock sounded upon Dicky's last word. As Dicky threw it open, Mary rushed past him with a passing, "Lo, Uncle Dicky," and a furtive look over her shoulder, and caught me into an impetuous embrace.

"I hope Grangie's asleep," she said, when she had kissed me, "but I'm nervous. You know what will happen if she gets it into her darling old noodle that we talked to any other member of the family before paying our respects to her."

"But we can't help it if she fears us limb from limb. We just had to come out to see you two before things get any worse. Oh, Auntie Madge! Uncle Dicky! We're in such a queer mix-up."

Spring Marketing With Martha Lee

Tempting Party Suggestions Found in Shops

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

HOSTESSES are vying with each other to serve something new for spring parties.

A leaflet giving many uses for Tuna Fish in tempting appetizers, dainty sandwiches and salads, and nourishing hot dishes is available for the asking. Just drop a line to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop Square.

SOUPS ready-to-heat and eat are in great demand because of their excellence and ease of preparation. Particularly during the warm weather they make an ideal opener for cold luncheons and dinners. Cream of Mushroom has proven itself to be the most popular, but is only one of this complete line, which includes Cream of Asparagus, Celery and Tomato among others. These tins, which will serve three to four people, sell 2 for 21c. It might be wise to stock up now for the next few months.

* * *

IT goes without saying that more raspberry and strawberry jam is consumed by youngsters than any other flavor. The Bureau of Home Economics advises giving children a variety of food flavors to broaden their taste in such matters. So you will want to try some of these other pure fruit preserves. They are selling at 29c for a large, two-pound jar. Besides raspberry and strawberry they feature apricot, blackberry, peach, pineapple, grape and orange marmalade.

* * *

WE THINK one of the most delicious ways of using whole kernel corn is in a grilled dinner. To prepare this, place the corn in the bottom of the broiler under the grill which holds the meat. As the ham broils the juices drip down through and season the corn deliciously. Whole kernel corn, which, by the way, is made from the very finest Maine corn, is selling two tins for 25c, formerly 15c each. The tin contains 1¾ cups of tender corn after the brine is removed.

* * *

CANNED MEATS are a very necessary addition to the emergency shelf, or for that matter, to any pantry shelf, for when you use canned meats the meal is ready to serve and with absolutely no waste. There are so many attractive quick ways of preparing it—sliced and sauteed, in casserole dishes, on luncheon salad plates or on the platter of cold cuts. A 20-ounce tin of corn beef sells for 21c, a saving of 2c.

* * *

ALTHOUGH we like the feel of the good earth while gardening, gloves are a convenience and economy, but they must be so well fitting that they will allow bare-hand freedom. We have seen some that are soft as kid yet durable, washable and dirt proof. They come in three different sizes for men and women and sell for 75c a pair.

* * *

A PERSONAL note for the man of the house: The coming of summer means lawns must be mowed. To do the job easily and efficiently the lawn mower must be sharp. A simple, efficient and practical carborundum sharpener sells for 50c. It can be adjusted very easily using two hands and the mower is sharpened in two minutes.

* * *

MAY showers make June brides well equipped! Of course, we think nothing is more helpful for the bride-to-be than a kitchen shower if it is well planned. Here is a very necessary item selling at a great saving, $1.95, usually $2.45. It is a three-in-one grill that can be used as a roasting pan, grill or broiler. The pan comes equipped with the appropriate inserts for the different processes.

* * *

PENCILS on horseback might sound queer until we explain that they are attractive little favors or bridge prizes, and very convenient ones, too. Not only are the pencils attached to polo horses, but also hunting dogs and lions. These sell for 25 cents. Pencils with a complete contract score on them make very helpful bridge prizes. These sell for 50 cents and $1—one of better grade than the other.

WE WILL BE very glad to give information on any of the above items if you will write to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop square, or call LIBerty 4000.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Caveman Standards Open Window to Matrimonial Unhappiness

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A soft answer turneth away wrath. And if the soft answer is flavored with a dash of humor, any situation is saved.

Most of the discord that ruins marriages comes from men and women gone back to the cave standard. Husbands and wives who would scorn a public argument as something antedating the horse and buggy days will often, in the privacy of the home, resort to verbal bludgeoning, childish sulking and even the most primitive physical violence.

Such conduct does not make for happiness in matrimony. And anyone who doubts this deserves all the misery that will most surely come his way. Good manners are as necessary as good clothes.

The harsh word and the truth spoken in anger are the gateway to the divorce court. Wise husbands and wives will keep this gateway barred forever with the honeyed word.

My five-dollar check for today goes to Mrs. G. who writes me this interesting letter

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Seven years ago my husband deserted me and the children. I have made every attempt to locate him, but have had no success. Sometimes I think he must be dead, though proof of this is lacking.

My problem concerns the possibility of my remarrying. Recently I met a man who is attentive to me and who, I believe, will make a good foster-father for my children.

Have I the right to marry him? Like you, I do not believe in divorce, especially for the children's sake. Nonetheless, I would like to have a little happiness.

MRS. G.

MY DEAR MRS G

If I were you I'd take the matter up with my pastor. There is a possibility your husband may be dead. If there is evidence of this, you will find laws governing your case. And eventually it will be legally possible for you to remarry.

However, I would think the matter over well. How would your children accept this new father? If they are in their teens, you will find the situation a difficult one, the more so if your sons and daughters remember their father

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have two children whom my husband seems to hate. After much deliberation, I have decided to divorce him and to trust to luck that another man will come along.

Could you tell me where I could board my children while I am suing my husband. I am working for a small salary.

MRS. J.

MY DEAR FRIEND

You are rather foolish. You'd be wiser to try to make your marriage a success and to refuse to turn your children into orphans.

As a wife and a mother, you have no right to hoist the white flag and call your marriage a bad job. It is your duty to rekindle the love that brought you and your husband together. Thinking that another man will come along bringing you happiness is ridiculous. There isn't a chance in a thousand that any such individual will ever appear.

And remember this, dear friend. Your husband may have something to say about your boarding the children. He may refuse to give them up and force you to surrender them to him if he is of good moral character and has a job, the law will in all probability be with him.

A mother's life is not her own to do with what she wishes. It belongs to the sons and daughters she has brought into the world. BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A few years ago I came to Boston from a distant city and went to live with one of my mother's friends. I have been happy, for both this friend and her husband have been most kind to me.

Unfortunately, I have permitted the husband to become too friendly. When we are alone, he frequently takes me into his arms and kisses me. It was amusing at first, but now I am afraid the wife has found out.

Do you think it would be proper for me to go to her and explain that I never entertained a thought of stealing her husband? I know this would be humiliating, but I feel that I owe her some kind of apology.

ALICIA

DEAR ALICIA:

Do not say anything to this dear friend whom you have betrayed so heartlessly. She will not believe you, no matter how convincing your explanations may be. Trust to luck and let well enough alone. That is the only sensible thing to do.

But, dear girl, if you are the kind of young woman I want to think you are you will go away just as soon as possible. Move to the Y. W. C. A. or a reasonable hotel. Make any believable excuse, but take flight now.

Deep down in your heart you know that you are guilty. You let this man embrace you. You did not permit such advances in the presence of his wife, did you? No. Of course, not. Rather you preferred the role of a thief. You stole that man's affections. And no words from you will ever justify your conduct in the eyes of right-thinking women.

Luckily, it is not too late for you to repair the damage you have done

Perfume For Sports

POSED BY ANNA STEN

By ARLINE GOULD

BREATHES there a woman with soul so dead that she is not interested in the announcement of a new perfume?

And when the perfume turns out to be truly exciting and intriguing, what woman isn't doubly interested?

A great Parisian perfumer has recently introduced to the country a new perfume which has the intoxicating boldness of sparkling Burgundy, the enchantment of magic casements yet is as refreshing as a pine tree on a mountain top.

• • •

Modern as Radio City, the perfume was created for the active out-of-doors and sports girl. Especially for active sports such as skiing golf, riding and swimming.

The tang of Russian leather is the subtle overtone in this delightful fragrance. A connoisseur can recognize real Russian leather by its distinctive odor and he scuffs appreciatively in its presence.

• • •

The same bark of a Russian birch tree used in tanning Russian leather is used in this new perfume. You can depend, therefore, on its appeal to masculine senses.

It will make you think of the wind whistling through the trees of a pine grove falling on a still trail the clear sparkle of a trout stream.

Before being introduced to this country, this perfume captured the imagination of fastidious French and English women who acclaimed it as one of the things which makes 20th century living exciting and worthwhile.

With the return of popular outdoor pastimes such as bicycling and hiking and the rites of outdoor loafing and sun-worshipping which have already begun, this new sports perfume is a special blessing.

Because what woman doesn't want to be as glamorous on a bicycle jaunt as she is when dancing amid soft lights and sweet music?

If you wish to know the name of this buoyant perfume and where it may be purchased, write Miss Arline Gould, Boston Evening American, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, or call her at Liberty 4000

New England Police Stories

Suntaug Lake Slaying

As Told by Ace Crime Reporters

Easter Sunday Death Of Girl Never Solved Despite 'Confession'

This is the 92nd in a series of true detective stories from New England police annals being presented daily by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

By HENRY L. DAILY

Very proud and tall, pretty Annie Geary stood, as police searchers shuffled past her into the humble little Geary cottage on the West Peabody shore of Suntaug lake.

The girl's arm lay protectively across the shoulders of her stock-headed, vacant-faced mother. In a rocker sat her father, who was "not quite right in the head" according to neighborhood opinion.

"You have a warrant," Annie told the officers. "I can't prevent you from entering this house to bring shame to us, poor, crippled old father. I can't keep you from tormenting young Tom here with your questions.

"But let me tell you, right now, you're making fools of yourselves. You'll find nothing in our home which will help you to arrest and punish the black-hearted villain that's been burning and robbing, all up and down this lake shore.

"There'll be worse mischief yet. And if you're smart, you'll quit bothering common folks like us to higher up. Just mark my words. Go higher up in society. Then, perhaps, you'll find your firebug-burglar."

Annie Geary was right in her prediction that evening of smoke and flame would be dissolved in the tears of her crippled father here and her cousin Tom.

As a matter of fact the Gearys themselves had suffered, as had other Lake Suntaug home owners from burglaries and incendiary fires.

On one recent occasion a barn on the Geary farm had burned to the ground under unexplained circumstances. And the fat, white horse which was Annie's special pride, had been let out of their pen by a ruffian who had used a dozen of the finest of the Geary young ones' dollies strewn about the ground.

The loss of their barn and their horse meant more perhaps to the Gearys than did destruction and looting of prosperous Lake Suntaug homes to other victims, most of whom were wealthy summer residents.

Those other victims included such notables as Generals Frank A. Appleton, David P. Ives, George S. Simonds and occupants of the palatial estate originally owned by Henry Sanborn Hall.

In contrast to many of their neighbors, the Gearys were on the border line of poverty.

Patrick Geary, Annie's father, had worked long and hard as boatbuilder in big Boston stables. He had saved a few hundred dollars with which he had managed to acquire his small farm at peace on Lake Suntaug.

Here he had fancied he'd live out his days in comparative comfort, when he had received the news-bulletin of making financial ends meet a responsibility which he accepted courageously and capably. Her mother was dead. Her only assistant with the farm work was the crippled half-wit, Tom Ducey.

It was toward Tom that police suspicions turned when public clamor began increasing to demand that decisive action be taken to halt incendiarism and burglary in the Lake Suntaug area.

Young Spaulding's father, fiery tongued Ezra Spaulding of Salem, had in his past been one of Essex county's shining lights of the social world, until when he mounted the pulpit.

Willard Spaulding the son had established a reputation of self-effacement and studiousness.

"That Ducey loon, who lives with the Gearys, is a menace to the community," young Spaulding said repeatedly. "The boy is feeble minded or worse, he's vicious in his habits and he's morally irresponsible.

"Here's the whole countryside terrified by incendiary fires and wanton thefts and burglaries, yet nobody does anything to restrain this Tom Ducey. It's official stupidity, that's what it is."

It was more or less directly as a result of Willard Spaulding's talk that Peabody police did obtain a search warrant eventually and go to the Geary cottage on the occasion when they were fired by the indignant Annie.

Go Higher Up

Having failed to find anything incriminating Tom and having also failed utterly in all efforts to obtain any damaging admissions from the supposedly not quite right Geary household, the Peabody officers began asking themselves what Annie might have meant by her cryptic advice to go higher up in society.

When that phrase of the girl's was repeated to Willard Spaulding, it seemed to affect him curiously.

"So," he said, "now it appears that Annie Geary knows more than she's telling about these fires and burglaries. Maybe she, herself, ought to be arrested. Maybe steps should be taken to make her say what she means—or stop her tongue-wagging."

Annie's reputation was of the highest. Her neighbors knew her as a loyal friend and a ready helper in any emergency.

The community had faith in Annie's honesty and intelligence.

If she chose to tell the police to "go higher up society" the people would do well to follow her advice.

There would be no arresting of Annie Geary. And no bullying of her either. Not if Suntaug lake residents, both humble and wealthy, had any say in the matter.

On Easter Sunday

But whatever Annie Geary may have known or may have suspected she never had a chance to divulge.

For, on Easter Sunday, April 20 1908, Annie Geary was murdered. Her body was found behind a toolhouse, near the lakeside, on the Geary farm.

The girl's skull had been crushed by a cowardly blow, struck from behind. Some heavy, blunt instrument, such as a lead pipe or a burglar's jimmy, had been used by the killer.

Actual discovery of the crime was made by Tom Ducey, who, in his inarticulate, dog-like way had always seemed to idolize his cousin Annie.

Tom was sent to look for the girl Sunday afternoon by Patrick Geary, the father. The latter, realizing at dusk that he hadn't seen his daughter since dinner time, became alarmed.

He hobbled on his rheumatic legs to the farmhouse yard, shouted: "Annie!" "Annie!" but got no answer.

Body in Toolhouse

Tom was back in 15 minutes. There was a smear of blood on the front of his overalls.

"She's dead," he said. "Annie's dead. They killed her. She's over behind the toolhouse."

Patrick Geary, when he had verified Tom's terrible report, was near collapse from shock and sorrow.

Tom, himself, however seemed to take the situation stolidly.

"What's to be will be, he said. Then he picked up his mule pail and went whistling to the cow shed, to begin his evening chores.

As was to be expected, Tom Ducey was the person in whom police investigating the slaying were most interested.

But Tom's supposed mental limitations seemed more of an asset than a liability to him as he faced successive third degrees.

He didn't attempt to outwit or outsmart police interrogators.

He didn't set up any elaborate alibis nor did he make any protestations of innocence.

He just repeated, over and over, his one unvarying story.

He had worked all afternoon, as usual, at minor Sunday chores. Then Patrick Geary had sent him to find Annie. He had found her. And Annie was dead. What was to be would be. Who had killed the girl? He didn't know. He had got the blood on his overalls when he had lifted the victims head.

Some Peabody residents, Willard Spaulding conspicuous among them, were inclined to grumble when George C. Neal, state detective assigned to the Annie Geary murder case, failed to put Tom Ducey under arrest.

Neal kept his own counsel, however. And if he was unwilling to accuse young Ducey of the killing he nevertheless spent a lot of time on the alleged half-wit's company.

Neal was the "quiet" Ducey admits confidence. He learned to understand the boy's sometimes incomprehensible jargon.

But how much Tom Ducey was able to do and say to help State Detective Neal doesn't appear on the record. But Neal made no secret of the fact that he, personally, was convinced that the Lake Suntaug firebug, blazes, the Lake Suntaug burglaries and the slaying of Annie Geary were all interrelated.

Startled Country

And he made no secret of the fact that he had confidence in "half-wit" Tom Ducey's powers of observation.

What happened when Detective Neal finally was ready to act is very much on record.

All Essex County was startled when Neal's first and only arrest in connection with the Suntaug Lake crimes was made public.

Accused of a jail cell like a common felon, Neal slapped the aristocratic and prominent son of an aristocratic and prominent father.

He was wrong in the first half of his statement.

But he was right in his assertion that somebody would suffer.

He was that somebody! And he suffered justly.

On overwhelming evidence he was convicted of the Lake Suntaug incendiarisms and burglaries. He was sentenced to ten years in state prison.

Loot in Home

In Spaulding's home, when Detective Neal searched it, was found loot taken from Appleton, Ives Simonds and Saltonstall mansions at the lake and from many other nearby summer residences.

But in confession which Spaulding made long afterward he said that he set the fires and committed the house breaks to satisfy a mad craving for excitement, not to injure his victims or to steal.

Almost to his very death-bed, Spaulding insisted that he had no guilty knowledge of Annie Geary's death.

He denied that he had killed the girl to silence her after he had learned that her purse of going charges up in society might indicate that she, or Tom Ducey, had suspicions of him as the actual firebug and burglar.

But murderer or not, Willard Spaulding paid dearly for his sins. He was ill and poverty-stricken when he was finally released from his cell at Charlestown.

For many months he was cared for at the Essex county hospital. Then he was transferred to the poor house.

There he died, wretchedly and ignominously.

When he realized, at the last, that his end was upon him, Spaulding made an alleged statement, in which he was quoted as saying:

"I didn't commit the Annie Geary murder. But I saw it done. I stood by while a friend of mine struck the fatal blow."

The friend" was never identified. Police never sought him.

He may have been a figment of the dying Spaulding's fevered imagination.

Or he may have been a last, desperate sop to Spaulding's own guilty conscience.

Tomorrow in the Boston Evening American the true detective series will continue with "New Bedford's Soldier Slayer" by Fred Perkins.

TEXTILE BILL GIVEN O. K.

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The revamped Ellenbogen bill, setting up a federal commission to control the textile industry, was reported favorably to the House today by its labor committee.

The approval measure represents two major changes by a labor sub-committee and was minus several provisions to which mill operators objected.

The redraft's outstanding feature was creation of the commission with authority to establish minimum wages on the basis of a 35-hour week.

In making his report, Chairman Connery (D., Mass.) said he would ask the rules committee immediately to give the bill a preferential status.

Connery also read a report of the subcommittee headed by Representative Keller (D., Minn.) which said the measure could meet constitutional tests. The report added the government should cooperate in eliminating "out-of-date machinery and in establishing independent sales agencies."

Hypnotic Drug Eases Knife's Pain

St. Louis, May 6 (AP)—A drug which works directly on the mind to relieve pain after surgical operations, and which, he said, rids surgery completely of the need for the habit-forming morphine and opium, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association today by Thomas J. Heldt, M. D., of the Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit.

The drug is a recently developed hypnotic. Under the name of "X," Dr. Heldt said, it was used in 500 major operations. Only he and one other physician knew what it was. Nurses and patients supposed it was like morphine.

Its results were compared with those in 500 other major operations where morphine and opium were used. It worked more effectively to ease pain than the habit-forming drugs.

The purpose of the Ford pain treatment is to avoid excitement, but to create by the aid of the new drug a state of mind under which pain is not keen. This experiment grew out of experience well known to medical men, in which post-operative pain has been relieved, and sometimes even the amount of anesthetic greatly reduced, by conditioning the patient in advance by talks.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!
It's like Dad said—
"Boys—our name is on this here whiskey. Keep the quality just so, and you'll find folks will thank you for it."

And folks sure do thank us! Here's a photo of us Wilkens doing some heavy trucking—William Wilken stacking in the freight car—Harry Wilken Jr. with the first truck load—and Tom coming up with another. It's Ned Parks doing the checking.

More folks hankering for our Family's Whiskey than ever!

It sure looks like Dad was right relating to how folks appreciate finding every bottle of our Family's Whiskey never varying the least little bit! Tom was just saying the other day how he never knew there could be so many orders. Well, by rights our Family's Recipe couldn't hardly help being good, being how this business of making whiskey has been going on in our Family so long. Take me and William and Tom shown trucking cases here. If you got a mind to figure it up, the three of us have put in all the grown up part of our lives working with Dad—not to make any mention of his own 44 years experience—and all grandad's experience on top of it. As I was saying—I don't see as how our Family's Whiskey could hardly help being good!

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

13 WEDNESDAY, MAY 6, 1936

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

Once more the Pulitzer Prizes crashed the front pages in their annual announcement event, one which of late years has often been followed by shrill choruses of vituperation, recrimination, and accusation, not so much from disappointed authors as from critics whose feelings have been hurt, the dramatic critics being, apparently, the most "tender-minded" and unable to take it, however able they are at dishing it out.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

But the original critics who made such a fuss last year have been dropped by the Trustees, who now have both the original and final choice to handle. Hence Brothers Woollcott and Eaton and Strong have no excuse this year for carrying on as they did a year ago.

I am inclined to think that this year the Pulitzer Trustees were in the position of a layman when a skillful magician says "choose a card, any card." He finds that he has had one forced on him

The inner circle of New York Dramatic Critics decided this year to get ahead of the Pulitzer Trustees, to take the wind out of their sails by choosing what they considered the best play without reference to the Prize. They did so. They picked Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset" which, for a wonder, has been seen in Boston. All agreeing except the late Percy Hammond.

Criticism Took in Every Play

The critics' consideration apparently took in every play produced in New York this season, except "Idiot's Delight," a very late spring newcomer. This must have left the Pulitzer Prize committee in a quandary. They couldn't play second fiddle to the critics.

Fortunately here was a brand new play which the critics had not formally considered but which had aroused a lot of favorable comment, largely because Robert Sherwood is a universal favorite.

Robert Benchley had publicly announced that if the critics would allow reconsideration he would shift his vote to "Idiot's Delight"—chiefly because he was a friend of Sherwood's and Sherwood was a friend of his. It rather reminds one of the old Algonquin log-rolling days.

It probably will be a popular choice, judging by recent writings, with Lynne Fontanne as the girl friend of a munitions millionaire and Alfred Lunt as an American hoofer managing a song and dance act of cuties around Europe. Fontanne, pretending to be a Rooshian lady of old lineage, actually turns out to be a cornfed Sadie from the middle west and a "perfessional" herself.

In the end they are all blasted into indistinguishable graves by a bunch of Italian aeroplanes on the loose. A dainty and amusing conceit, fit food for those who pretend to be able to find no excuse for war.

The management really ought to invite the staff from the Italian embassy to celebrate its country's distinguished victory by watching the mimic Italian victory in the Alps.

People around here will be disappointed that the Biography prize did not go to our own Cambridge Bliss Perry for his gentle and charming, and very genuine, autobiography, "And Gladly Teach" (Houghton Mifflin Co.)

Harvard Man Wins Biography Prize

Instead, the Biography prize goes to another Perry of Harvard, Professor Ralph Barton Perry, of the philosophy department, for what is doubtless a much more important book historically speaking, "The Thought and Character of William James"; a rather welcome relief in phrasing from the usual "life and letters" and very appropriately so.

The chief points, it seems to me, to note about the fiction award to Harper's biennial prize-winning novel, "Honey in the Horn" by one Harold L. Davis, are that young Mr. Davis is virtually unknown because the Harper's award is always given for a first novel by a hitherto unpublished novelist, and also because very few prize novels of late have lived up to the expectations entertained by the publishing houses that give them.

I believe that even "Honey in the Horn" did not last very long at the top of the best seller list, although the award did undoubtedly attract the attention of the Pulitzer Trustees. By next week Mr. Davis will very likely be a best seller again.

BLONDES BRING SMILEY'S SWAN SONG

Girls can now go back to looking grim again. "Smiley," the demon photographer, has sung his swan song. No need longer to smile when you see a funny looking little man with a funny looking little black box. He says he is going back to Scituate, but maybe that's only a photographer's phantasy. Despite the valiant counter attack of blondes and red[illegible], blondes still lead the list of "Smiley" ringers.

If you were smiling, and if your picture is ringed above, you are eligible for one of the I. J. Fox Company dresses distributed by the Boston Evening American "Smiles" photographer. Look the picture over carefully. If your face is not there and ringed, perhaps someone you know is. The deadline on "Smile" photos is near. Hurry up.

CIRCUS SNAPS WIN STARDOM GOWNS

By SMILEY
(The Big-Hearted Photographer)

So now I got orders and this is what I have nicknamed my swan song and you girls can go back to looking grim again and not smiling, because I do not have to take any more pictures of smilers, especially blondes.

The reason I got my orders is that no news is any more [illegible] it gets moved [illegible] of course, girls in these nice Stat[illegible] dresses from the I. J. Fox Company store could never get monotonous, and in fact I do not know many things that become monotonous except waiting for your bonds wife and hanging.

Anyway those girls who have been snapped by none other than me while smiling and have been in the paper with rings around their heads can still come in until they are exhausted.

CROSSED UP

In this fashion they crossed me up on one girl who was smiling who came in and this girl was Miss Catherine Lonergan of 18 Heal place, Scituate, whose picture they put in the paper again without telling me or letting me peek at her.

So when I saw this picture I was now I had taken a place at Scituate again and not at Nantasket, where the address is 94 Nantasket avenue and I will be the feeble and worn-out brunette creeping through the [illegible] evenings surrounded by [illegible] of blondes who overrun the place including the blonde waiter below.

Two new ones that I have to report today are Miss Ruth Mattson of 11 Johnson court, Norwood, and Miss Mildred Kaufman of 196 Bute Hill avenue, Mattapan, and about Ruth it is a funny coincidence, because she is a sister of Vera Mattson who won a dress last week for smiling.

TWO BALL GAMES

And funnier than that is that Vera was snapped at the ball game in Fenway Park a week ago Sunday and her sister Ruth was snapped at the ball game in the same position in the Park last Sunday. Can I help it if there?

Miss Kaufman was snapped at the circus Monday and her picture was in the evening American and she almost had six dresses in here because she had her hat on backwards again, like in the picture where she was.

So now this is what I call my swan song and I will see you later and maybe I can arrange [illegible] running something else on the order of the girls in bathing suits in the summer.

A smile a day keeps the blues away. And, girls, it may win you a dress. Mildred Kaufman of Mattapan wins one today.

Gertrude Scott, of Temple street, Cambridge, kept on smiling as she got order for an I. J. Fox Company dress for smiling.

Braley Ballads Competition Rules

The Boston Evening American is inviting amateur and professional song composers to write the music for two ballads by Berton Braley the first of which appears on this page today.

The writing of this music is a genuine test of skill in musical composition and involves no elements of a game of chance or a lottery. Anyone may compete, whether or not he or she is a regular reader of the Boston Evening American.

A cash prize of $100 will be awarded to the amateur or professional composer who submits what is considered the most appropriate melody for each of the two ballads. The judging will be done by a board of musical experts selected by the Boston Evening American.

The date for the closing of entries for the first ballad—"Just You"—shall be midnight, May 23, and of entries for the second ballad midnight, June 23.

A similar regional contest is being conducted in fifteen other cities by the Hearst newspapers.

After regional prizes have been awarded in each of the cities where the competition is held the music of each regional winner will be sent to New York city to be judged by a national board of distinguished composers who will award two national prizes of $100 each for the ballards.

The awards of the regional and national judges selected by the Hearst newspapers will be final and not subject to appeal, this condition being accepted by each contestant prior to submitting music for either ballad.

Entries should be sent to Berton Braley Ballad Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ruth Mugglebee

Our story about the pennies has started a spring revival.

One of my Commonwealth avenue friends, on the lookout since the story was printed, reported to me that twice, on sunny afternoons, he noted glistening new pennies on the glass grating at the Dartmouth street oasis.

Some day I am going to hide [illegible] around the corner and, like a real newshawk, get to the bottom of this penny mystery.

• • •

WITH APOLOGIES TO DAVE WILSON:

And last week's words about horse betting systems has resulted in an avalanche of new ones.

RUTH MUGGLEBEE

So many have come to me, that, after sifting them through, I am only going to print a few. "Cause, evidently, you are interested. Are you?"

Maybe, they'll bring you better luck than I have had with the elusive ponies.

A sporting editor of many years standing, whose knowledge of the thoroughbreds is something to listen to and learn from, bets four horses in every race. He bets the four contending horses and the percentage of winners can't be beaten, he says.

• • •

Women Revive Hat-Pin Method

Then, too, many women are reviving the "hat-pin" method, originated when hat-pins were the vogue and a woman's head really was substantially hatted.

You simply take a pin, in these here modern times, and stick it through the track program. Whatever horse's name in every race is, thereby, holed by the pin-prick is the bangtail on which you place your hard-earned cash. You pray, of course, after you've made your bet.

• • •

And, then there is the progressive system on the second favorite. Without wasting any time studying form (the disappointing thing), marking your scratch sheet and doing the innumerable things you do at a track, you nonchalantly watch the "tote" board and bet the second horse in the betting. You see you let the public do the work for you.

A well known trainer, who owns and conditions horses, and is one of the topnotchers of his profession, bets this way. He assured me the system is almost 100 per cent for winning.

What more could I do for you to help you make money?

• • •

Play Jockeys, Not the Horses

WELCOME SPRING AND HORSES:

Bet the mounts that these jockeys are scheduled to ride and you'll find a winner among them.

The system being, I am told on good authority, that jockeys having "hive" mounts rush out quickly to get aboard, figuring they have a winner.

The boy rider who lags behind, realizing he has a "stiff" or a cold horse, doesn't hurry to his assignment.

Some Who Escaped Aunt Sally: or . Circus Reveries

IT IS SPRING AGAIN and I am shoving off to the Garden's circus to sniff the acrid perfume of damp earth and tanbark and stand once more in the runways where luscious, painted ladies go yipping and ragdolling into the arena. I am too old to run away with the circus now. My old football knee would never stand the strain of cartwheeling about the big oval.

Austen Lake

But I like to pause in the off-stage intimacy and recapture boyhood's wonderland, instinctively curling my great-toe where, in the old barefoot day there were bottle-cuts and bandages.

The saucy blurt of the circus band revives visions of my Aunt Sally, the wistfully-remembered little widow-lady in black taffeta about whose swishing person there were soft whiffs of lavender and rosemary. Aunt Sally was forever clucking her tongue at us kids and dipping up shiny nickels and sugar sticks from the capacious purse which hung from her frail wrist.

That was very long ago!

* * *

FOUR WHO DARED

STILL, THERE HAVE BEEN youngsters who escaped from their Aunt Sallies and passed successfully through the looking-glass of their illusions to run away and join the circus. A few who dared to seize fate by its earlaps and snatch the stuff from which dreams are made. Like little Peggy Murray, the perky Boston lass with a boy's body, dimples and a tip-tilted nose, who was a stenographer on Devonshire street. Or Marion Ray, the Quincy girl who wrote a female shopwear column on a Brockton paper and later typed publicity for the Tampa Chamber of Commerce. And Johnny Grady, who was once a cherub in a Dorchester church choir and bending toward the priesthood. Only Johnny's fancies turned out to be more comical than spiritual and he vacated the cloister for the clown.

Or Anna Louise Hutchinson, the LaSalle Academy graduate and ex-lady councilor at Camp Telawookeet, a fashionable summer school for girls, where she taught little folk how to sit a saddle without grabbing for the horse's tail.

* * *

HOW TO BECOME A COWGIRL

PEGGY MURRAY WENT ORIGINALLY to look at Florida's wonder-world and vacation with some Sarasota friends, pious Bible people who led starchy lives on weekdays and sang glory doggerel in their Sunday camp meeting. So one fateful day Peggy passed over the railroad tracks where the circus winter-quarters lie in a land of tall-stemmed turpentine trees and rattlesnake palmetto. And she poked her blonde head into one of the roundhouse buildings where high-school horses are taught to waltz and kneel.

On the instant Peggy's girlish soul gave a convulsive heave and she, who had known no horses save the delivery dobbins in Boston's downtown streets, gave up her life as a lady typist and took the career of a cow-girl

Yes, Peggy escaped her "Aunt Sally" and learned how to headstand on horse's daanboard, tip toe on its poop deck and chin herself on its tail.

* * *

"THE SPEC"

MARION RAY HAD AMBITIONS to write a book, full of tinsel, adventure and romance, and she bussed over from Tampa to ask, please, could she be shown over the circus lot to glean material for her manuscript. Only the book somehow never became written and she joined the "Act Beautiful" as a living statue in white fleshings and kalsomined skin, the "spec" as show folk call the figures who contort as motionless as frosted puppets on a wedding-cake.

They tell the yarn about Marion, as one of the priceless gags of the "lot," that when she joined up she asked the property man what equipment she would need and was told, "Just a pair of trunks," meaning lady's opera-length tights. So Marion turned up with two wardrobe chests, both big as a pantry.

* * *

AND JOHNNY GRADY, Ringling's "producing" clown, who invents ways to amuse the ringside kids by squirting water out of his eyes and lighting bonfires in the slack of his pants without ever singeing his skin. So that Johnny, the old Dorchester altar-seraph, will be found these days in an inflated policeman's suit, big as a blimp. He paints polkadots on his puss, wears a putty nose big as the nozzle on a tea-pot and gives his midget assistants the business with a padded club. And I am puzzled as to which of Johnny's two boyhood ambitions, the clergy or the comic, pointed him to the greater human service—the one which saves seasoned souls or the one which makes young hearts glad.

It was four years ago that Anna Hutchinson went down to Sarasota to visit her daddy, who was the gaudy cashier and treasurer of the Ringling show, and she never went back. No Sir! She stayed to become a feature rider with her pink, curvilinear figure pictured on the six-sheet flyers that are plastered on country barns, and to make little boys hearts patter with magnificent emotion.

Ho-hum! Dear Aunt Sally.

MEET CUBS IN CHICAGO

Chicago, May 6—Only two games away from the roof, the rampaging Bees swarmed into town today for a series with the league champion Cubs.

And the Windy City brain trusters went into an immediate huddle to devise ways and means of stopping Bill McKechnie's "miracle" team.

(Pictures from International News Photograph Service)

HE'S IN THERE and it's a run for the Red Sox. Oscar Melillo scoring on a close play after Lefty Grove had belted out a double in the second inning to clinch his own game. The player in front with the bat is Dusty Cooke. A few minutes later he banged out a trip to score Grove. Yup, Lefty whitewashed 'em again. The score was 2 0.

BEAN BALLS are not only tossed up at the plate. Here is Umpire Geisel down for the count after being hit on the head when somebody on the Detroit bench tossed out a ball for practice. But it wasn't just a toss, for Geisel dropped as if he were shot. The Tiger's doctor can be seen rushing to Geisel

MARCUM To Pitch OPENER

ARM REPORTED IN SHAPE

By Joe Cashman

A recent shift in betting odds, due to the remarkable pitching of Robert Moses Grove and Wesley Cheek Ferrell and the destructive offensive power of their supporting cast, has made our pace-setting Red Sox the pennant favorites in the bigger books.

The price now being quoted is 6 to 5 against the Cronnmen.

And the figures may shorten to even money by nightfall

For Manager Joe Cronin announces that John Footsie" Marcum will go to the hill p m. when Roberts Hurlers open St. Louis Brow n mound debut appearance of the season here in the opener of a two game series.

Mr. Boston Wrestlers Fear Big, Bad Wolf

By Jack Conway

JOE ALVAREZ of the Paul Bowser forces says the front rank wrestlers are all afraid of the big bad wolf. Joe refers to Chief Little Wolf, Navajo Indian, whom he has signed to appear at the Garden a week from Friday night.

Yvon Robert, sensational French Canadian heavyweight, says that previously signed matches make it impossible for him to clash with Chief Little Wolf.

Mr. Boston

Jim Londos didn't even reply to Alvarez offer. Jim ran out of a bout with Chief Little Wolf in California and doesn't intend to get into any future matches with the Indian.

'LEFTY' GROVE

"LEFTY" Grove gave an impressive exhibition of pitching as he turned back the Tigers in the first game of their series with the Sox by a score of 2 to 0. Grove is pitching as good ball as he did when at the height of his career with the Athletics. He now has a fast breaking curve ball which is something he didn't have when with the Macks.

Grove's fire ball is as good as ever. When there are men on the bases, he usually relies upon his terrific speed to blind the opposition. Even the capable Rick Ferrell had difficulty holding on to some of the blazing shots Grove breezed by rival batsmen.

The Sox have the victory spell when Grove is pitching. They feel they are certain to win. They field brilliantly behind "Lefty" while they come through with hits in the clutch.

COCHRANE

MICKEY Cochrane looked his old self behind the bat and when facing enemy pitching. He was delighted to be back in the game. Cochrane's presence in the lineup means much to the pennant chances of the Tigers. Joe Cashman tells me he considers Cochrane the greatest competitive player in baseball. I believe Joe is right.

I talked with Mickey and Joe Cronin at the dinner at the Club Mayfair to the Night Pink Prep Edition of the Boston Evening American. Joe was much concerned over Mickey's injured foot, while Cochrane was anxious over the progress of Cronin's fractured thumb. Both are the highest type of intelligent athletes, and even though they are managing rival pennant clubs each is anxious to see the opposition have its full strength in the field.

"Hank Greenberg will be out of the lineup for two months with his broken wrist," Cochrane told me. "His loss was a severe blow to our flag chances, but I feel that when Irving Burns gets back into the game we shall have real strength at first base."

I also chatted with Schoolboy Rowe at the Night Pink dinner. He is a well set up youngster with powerful shoulders and tremendous wrist development. I look for him to have another large season.

SHARKEY 206

I FOUND Jack Sharkey talking with Bud Shaver, sports editor of the Detroit Times, at the dinner. Sharkey only weighs 206 pounds following fishing trip to Maine, and is in "the pink."

Shaver has reported most of Sharkey's major bouts, and has watched the former heavyweight champion in his training sessions. Bud told Jack Kenney, publication manager of this newspaper, that he got a glimpse of a different Sharkey at the Club Mayfair. Away from the boxing grind, Shaver says he found Sharkey affable and anxious to talk on the sports topics of the day.

DONOVAN SEEN AS THREAT

The five athletes, judged on their performances during the past indoor season and their 1935 showings outdoors to be the ranking timber-toppers in the East, are Milton Green and Jack Schmidt, Harvard; Jack Donovan, Dartmouth; Bill Ladendorf, Pennsylvania, and Jennings Potter of Columbia.

Green, Potter and Ladendorf were in the field which faced the starter's gun at Palmer Stadium a year ago, when in a blanket finish, Green was declared the winner, Potter second and Ladendorf fourth behind Wilcock, of Princeton.

Green is the I. C. 4 A. champ. Ladendorf was runnerup in the indoor championships; Schmidt fourth and Potter fifth.

FIFTH STAR

Donovan is expected to run the high hurdles in 14.8 seconds on Saturday, just four-tenths of a second above the world's record, to add his name to the long list of Dartmouth timber-toppers, headed by Earl Thompson.

In his first major start in varsity competition, Donovan finished third in the I. C. 4 A. championships. Thus the entire I. C. 4 A. championship field, Green, Ladendorf, Donovan, Schmidt and Potter will compete in the Heptagonal events.

Green, Potter and Donovan will be competitors also in the low hurdles, in which a big threat is Alfred K. Mills, Yale sophomore who in the Harvard-Yale freshman meet won his event in 23.9 seconds.

A year ago, at Princeton, Green stumbled in the low hurdles, a mishap which probably cost the Crimson an eighth individual championship and Green the honor of being a triple winner.

DUSEK May Win or MAYBE RAE

Rudy Dusek, it is reported, will try to "crash" the Arena gates tonight when his kid brother, Emil, collides with Tommy Rae in the feature of Alex MacLean's wrestling show.

Rudy has been in the habit of seconding Emil in all his bouts, feeling that Emil, youngest of the four wrestling Dusek brothers, has the qualities to become the next heavyweight champion of the world, but MacLean announced a ban on all Duseks but Emil tonight.

Without the steadying influence of Rudy in his corner, Emil may take a cuffing from Rae in this two out of three falls match. And Rudy, at times, has been known to give Emil a little material assistance, by cutting loose a "sneak" punch or kick when Emil's foe is maneuvered into the wrong corner or tossed out of the ring.

MacLean, aware of this and having seen the Duseks "gang" Yvon Robert here recently, issued the edict that Ernie, Rudy and Joe Dusek would not be admitted tonight at the Arena. Rudy insists that he will be present and MacLean will have the doorman on the watch for him, even open for Rudy in some tricky disguise.

Rae, packing a destructive drop-kick and plenty of speed, may give Emil Dusek a thorough beating. Rae reached the peak of his form only a week ago against Rudy Ladiski and, in the same stride tonight, should smother Emil Dusek in straight falls.

A newcomer to the Arena, Frank "Terror" Tonti, will run into the flurry of punches tossed by George K. O. Koverly, ex-fighter, in the semi-final, 30 minutes with one fall to win.

Hit Fest

22 Runs Scored in One Inning

Twenty-two runs in the first inning, 12 for the Harvard Grads, and 10 for the Boston College varsity, who finally won out 15 to 12, set some sort of a record for high scoring in a single inning at University Heights.

Two B. C. twirlers and one Crimson ace went to the showers in that hectic first which was finally ended by the advent of the game's two pitching stars, Charlie Devens of the Grads, and Fred Bonin of the Eagles.

Five singles, five walks, a fielder's choice and a triple by Bill Lord gave the visitors their dozen tallies while seven passes, two singles, a double and Captain Tim Read's triple gave the Eagles their 10 scores.

Ali Baba Tosses Shikat Again

New York, May 6 (U.P.)—Ali Baba, a squat, bald pated and mustachioed Turk, today had added his name to the ever-growing list of claimants for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship in Madison Square Garden.

The so-called "Mysterious Turk" earned that claim slightly more than a week ago when he pinned Dick Shikat to a Detroit mat, and last night he subjected New York skeptics by flattening the German "bad man" for the second time.

The Turk won the title from Shikat in Detroit, April 21, but the match was disallowed by the New York State Athletic Commission. They ordered the return bout here.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

ANN MARSTERS

Longshots were on parade at Narragansett yesterday with favorites continuing to fall by the wayside. But now that the meeting has been underway three days, the form players should receive a better break at the hands of Lady Luck.

YESTERDAY we had one winner, JEAN BART, $3.60 at Pimlico. YE-TIVE, MOWER and SAINT KITTS, our choices at Narragansett, failed to win while WHITE COCKADE was a disappointing last at Jamaica.

The bankroll is now $504.30 going into the thirtieth day of the experiment. This afternoon we're confining our choices to Narragansett. So here goes: NEW DEAL from the ARAHO STABLE is a likely winner in the Warren Handicap fourth event, while PLANETOID is rated the topnotch filly down to contest the Jeanne D'Arc Stakes. Steve Judge's DORMIDO should fancy the going that will prevail. It's $2 to win on each.

My late specials are a $2 win parlay on DORMIDO and PLANETOID and a $2 place parlay on NEW DEAL, DORMIDO, and PLANETOID.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the thirtieth day.)

BEST—BILLY JONES.

PLANETOID. No dearie, you don't pronounce it, rather gargle, as you would a mess of spaghetti.

However, for the benefit of those who didn't march on Addis Ababa, let me whisper into the shellike ear. Boy, here is a hide.

Shipped on from Louisville, to run in the fifth at Narragansett, and on what we know it would seem like taking "advantage" of the common enemy to lay a bet. Mine are riding right smack on the beezer.

PATHOS and CHANTING for what is left. There was also a raft of commissions reported out of Kansas City on CROWNED HEAD, which worked a mile in 1:41 3-5 for this race. True, WAYDREL is a much improved filly while POLO BAR "responds" well to ring "action." I still believe the Pulitzer Prize cop VENETIAN in the closing dash looks like an eagle bird, hence my last word is wheel it away Yerweekun.

At Jamaica

From Jamaica the happy chatter is none other than BRUSH HOOK, a trick that has been kept under cover for quite a while. Walked three furlongs in 0:35 for this and previously a mile in 1:39 2-5 with his mouth wide open.

Personally, and inasmuch as he is tossed in with an exceptionally cheap lot, I believe any price is a good one. Couccl will have the edge up. Speaking of the latter rider also brings to mind that he rides another supposedly good thing in the second, in AIRY GOING. The latter has a full three point call in my ratings. Oh, yes, there is dough for BILLOWY WAVE in the nightcap. Let your conscience be your guide.

At Pimlico

Over at Pimlico, where a really first class card is offered, I am going to slip you two savory morsels—SONNY JOE in the open sprint dash and BOW AND ARROW in the third. Both of these, on recent performances should be able to fall down, get up turn three somersaults, then be first to look the judges in the eye. If you still need a winner why you better go along with "Irish Jimmy" and his plaster SINGING HEART. "Looks like I will have to easily" is the way he answered my query. Back 'em up, Sandy—Hasta Manana.

Betting Ruled Illegal in New York

After quoting from an article in the State Constitution and two sections of the penal law, the attorney general held.

"From these provisions, I conclude that betting at race tracks is illegal in New York State. However, where as the offense was formerly a misdemeanor and punishable as such, the legislature under Chapter 440 of the laws of 1926 as amended by Chapter 233 of the laws of 1934 has made a civil forfeiture the sole penalty therefor."

CHO-SEN WINS Chester Cup

Chester, Eng., May 6 (AP)—Mrs Aleshia Chosen today won the Chester Cup stakes at two miles, two furlongs and 77 yards. Quoted at 100 to 7 Cho-sen beat off Lord Derby's Guisecard, 100 to 9 by a neck.

Kentucky Derby Victor and a Couple of His Best Pals

IRA HANFORD, "baby faced" daredevil of the turf who piloted Bold Venture to a hard fought victory in the Kentucky Derby, takes time off to show the cameraman what an ace jockey does when he's not hooting the thoroughbreds home.

Florida to Seek 1944 Olympics

By Damon Runyon

New York, May 6 (US)—Mr. George Hussey of Miami, Florida, the handshakingest man south of the Mason and Dixon line, informs us that Miami is not only going to furnish most of the star aquatic performers for America in the 1936 Olympics, but that the Florida city will make a strong bid for the 1944 games.

Mr Hussey is officially in charge of outdoor diversions for the Florida Power and Light Company, but unofficially he is public greeter No. 1 for all south Florida.

He is the stout man with the Chamber of Commerce smile who meets you and dukes you as you step off a train or as you alight from an airplane

Once a fellow by the name of Opdyke got into Miami without being met by Mr. Hussey, by the scurvy expedient of sneaking in on foot under cover of night and Mr. Hussey was pretty much offended about it.

Always There

No matter what happens in south Florida, her high crimes and misdemeanors of course, Mr. Hussey generally has a finger and two thumbs in it. His normal mood is deep thought. He is always trying to think of something to happen in Miami. It is a great mental strain.

The Olympics for 1944 is perhaps a new thinking high for Mr Hussey. He really is knuckling there. It seems he concedes the 1940 Olympics to Japan, but Miami must have the games in 1944 or somebody will hear from Mr. Hussey.

"Look!" roars Mr. Hussey. "Look at the list of swimmers and divers that Florida offers for Olympic competition this year —Ralph Flanagan, national and world record holder at a half mile and a mile; Katherine Rawls, the world's greatest all-around swimmer and June Burr, the third best all-rounder.

"Then we've got Marion Hopkins, Virginia Hopkins, Dorothy Rawls, Esden Rawls and Betty Joyce McMinn, members of the national championship relays.

"Our Florida divers include Marshall Wayne, former national champion outdoor tower diver. Also Albert Root, national champion low board diver, and Mary Hoerger, the 12-year-old national outdoor low board champion, and Helen Hoerger, the 10-year-old runner-up in the lower dive."

"Are you personally a swimmer or diver, Mr. Hussey," we asked.

"I can't even float, even if I am built like I had a spare tire about my middle," said Mr. Hussey. "But in Miami we have Pete Des Jardins, former Olympic champion diver and present world champion professional diver, and Pete's a friend of mine. He does my diving for me.

HOOP Moguls Still BATTLING

Chicago, May 6 (AP)—Charges of "Olympic hitch-hiking" bounced back and forth today between Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen, athletic director of Kansas University, and the American Athletic Union over the disposition of funds for American participation in Olympic basketball, but the real headache was still the American Olympic committee's.

The committee continued to wonder where the money would come from to buy round trip tickets to Berlin for a proposed cage squad of 3 players, two coaches and a manager.

President Avery Brundage of the A. A. U. replied in kind yesterday when Dr. Allen, "withdrawing my name as director of Olympic basketball for the 11th Olympiad," explained he did so because of what he called "deceitful political bartering" by A. A. U. members of the Olympic basketball committee.

Dr Allen charged that the A. A. U. planned to "hitch-hike" to Berlin on such funds as the $5000 he claimed his Kansas team and Utah netted in their district elimination, won by Utah.

Brundage and his assistant, J Lyman Bingham, retorted that Dr Allen had not been appointed Olympic basketball director by the Olympic committee but only recommended by the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

WILSON Calls Her BEST

BEST BET—PLANETOID, FIFTH RACE

Narragansett Park, R. I., May 6—Planetoid, winner of her only two starts, will make her Eastern debut here in the Jeanne d'Arc Stakes, mid-week feature which has attracted ten of the better fillies on the grounds.

FIRST RACE

Hats Off, Mad Dash, Society Column

HATS OFF showed several sparkling efforts in slightly better company during the Havre de Grace and Bowie sessions. He needs only intelligent handling. MAD DASH will be dangerous only in the event of a lightning fast track. He couldn't untrack himself in the mid last Monday. SOCIETY COLUMN hails from the powerful Araho stable.

SECOND RACE

Broadsword, Regula Baddun, Midnight Flyer

BROADSWORD, rested since Florida, holds a slight class advantage over the 12 $1250 platers he meets in the second. REGULA BADDUN, scratched with this race in view, is at tops and appears to have the rest of the field at his mercy.

THIRD RACE

Forced Landing, Fairest Flag, Miss Ginbar

FORCED LANDING beat practically the same calibre of horse each in her New England debut Saturday. With an alert break at the barrier, look for her to lead from flag fall to finish. FAIREST FLAG has some creditable races in Maryland to recommend her and if the top one makes any mistakes look for her to take all the money.

FOURTH RACE

New Deal, Jones Entry, Kane Entry

NEW DEAL, third to Allen 2 in the Narragansett Handicap, returns to the racing wars beautifully spotted in this number. Favorably burdened at 115 pounds the Araho stable colorbearer needs only one of Steffen's good rides in order to trace the winner's circle. FURPIBER and BOSTON BROOK, which will run coupled as the W. A. Jones entry, figures to offer the sternest sort of contention.

FIFTH RACE

Planetoid, Pathos, Chanting

Many horsemen rate PLANETOID an even better juvenile prospect that the unbeaten Goldey F. PATHOS flashed blinding speed in drubbing Jackie D and other shifty juveniles last Saturday. She should offer the contention.

SIXTH RACE

Polo Bar, Dutch Uncle, Hickory Lad

If the work tab is any criterion, POLO BAR should have little trouble leading the seven platers he encounters. Always partial to this distance, should stays his usual stretch run to be first. DUTCH UNCLE, recently claimed from A. G. Vanderbilt, has a smattering of class.

SEVENTH RACE

Dormido, Pocket, American Prince

DORMIDO was pitted too ambitiously in a lone outing in this sector and that effort should be discarded. Previous Maryland and California form shows that he is capable of handing a field of this sort. POCKET, a recent Jamaica winner, is strictly the danger.

EIGHTH RACE

Grandpas Boy, Seawick, Last Romance

GRANDPAS BOY needs only to run to his best effort in order to trace the field. He showed to advantage in better company on Saturday.

U. S.-ENGLISH WOMEN TIE

Gleneagles, Scotland, May 6 (AP)—The third renewal of the International Curtis golf competition between American and British women players, with the invading forces defending the cup, ended in a 4 1-2 to 4 1-2 deadlock today.

With the United States leading 4 1-2 to 3½ and the final result hanging on the outcome of the singles match between Miss Leona Cheney and Jessie Anderson 1935 New Zealand champion, Miss Anderson gained John Bull his threefold attack of defeat in the series by hoisting out a 15-foot putt on the 18th hole to win one up.

MRS. VARE

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare defeated Wanda Morgan, the English champion, three and two.

Miss Maureen Orcutt Crews, 7 and 6 over the veteran Mrs. Opa Hill of Kansas City, Mo., Charlotte Glutting, South Orange, N. J., defeated young Pam Barton, 1934-35 runner-up in the British championships, 1 up.

Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews, Coral Gables, Fla., conquered Mrs. I. B. Walker, one up, thus assuring America a tie, at least, in her defense of the Cup.

GREAT FINISH

Miss Morgan had a chance to win the first when Mrs. Vare was bunkered, but she three-putted and they halved it in par fives. They also tied the second in scores, two over par, but Mrs. Morgan took the third with a birdie four to Mrs. Vare's five.

Mrs. Vare rallied to even the match at the short fifth, with a par 3 and went ahead at the next where she shot a other par 4. Miss Morgan's t Two holes each in 5 and Mrs. Vare l one up at the turn.

The cards:

Morgan, out	5	6	5	4	5	5	4	5	5	—43
Vare, out	4	6	3	5	5	5	5	5	4	—42

Miss Morgan squared her match with Mrs. Vare at the 10th when the American captain's tee shot plunked between Mrs. Vare's the front seven when she putted her second shot on the green at 13th for Philadelphia. Mrs. took the 14th when Mrs. Morgan drove bunker and had to her second shot into bunker.

Mrs. Vare missed another at the 16th hole when she sank a spectacular recovery from a bunker, putting it within inches of the cup and holing the putt. Miss Morgan missed a nine-foot putt for a half in 4s.

The cards:

Vare	5	4	5	5	4	5	4	5	4	—41
Morgan	5	5	5	6	6	4	5	5	4	—45

Mrs. Vare won 3 and 2.

"That's great," said Mrs. O'Neill, "I wouldn't complain. Of course, I can't say how wives of other players might feel.

"This sacrifice is justifiable. It should be that way for the sake of the team and their families. I think the Indians should be very careful. It will be all right with us."

Meanwhile, in Washington, Manager O'Neill said: "We will be home from our road trip Monday. That means just 31 kissless days at home and, shucks, anyone ought to be able to manage that.

"All of the boys except four are married and none of the wives travels along. Not that they don't trust the fellows, but I suspect some smug satisfaction in Cleveland over the doctor's orders."

None of the other Indians wives or families could be reached.

Dr. James G. Cummings, chief of the bureau of preventable diseases, said: "I strongly advise that they do not go in for kissing. There might be germ carriers on the team."

Restaurant Chef Almost Cooks His Own Goose

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Grab a knife and fork, boys and girls. Tuck a napkin under your chin and sit down at the lunch counter. Today's Distinguished Adventurer is a chef, and he's going to feed us a few French fried thrills that ought to take care of your appetite for adventure for a while. Meet Ben Evans of Brooklyn, N. Y. And while he's peeling those thrills and putting the skillet on the stove, let's have a look at the adventure that happened to him one cold day in December, 1917.

In those days, Ben was boiling the beans in a cafe in Brooklyn. Remember that winter of 1917? It was one of the coldest winters New York had ever seen, and it was right in the middle of the coldest spell of the year that Ben's adventure happened to him.

The kitchen Ben worked in was equipped with both coal and gas ranges, and besides those there was a gas-fired griddle for making pancakes, which were a specialty of Ben's and a big item on the cafe's breakfast menu. "We generally had that griddle full of cakes from 5 in the morning to 11," Ben says, "and on this particular morning the gas flow was getting so low that it was impossible to keep the griddle hot."

Well, sir, it was just one of those things that make a chef's life miserable. He and the boss went into conference and decided it must be a drip—a pipe connection where moisture had collected, due to the cold weather—and that the only thing to do was to open the pipe up and let the water run out.

Ben and his boss went down into the basement to open up the pipe. "The gas meter was located in the coal bin," says Ben, "and only a short time before the bin had been filled with three tons of coal. The door of the bin opened inward. We took our coal from a small opening level with the floor, but to get into the bin we had to force the large door back, at the same time pushing away the coal that had fallen down and lodged against it.

Ben and the boss pushed that door open only after quite a struggle. They went inside, but as they climbed the coal pile to get to the meter the coal slid down, pushing the door shut again. "It was dark in there," says Ben, "and we never noticed that the coal had shut the door and blocked our way out. I started to unscrew the cap on the drip."

Later Ben found out that you should never take the pipe all the way off. But he did let the cap go, and as it did he gave it a couple turns for luck. Quicker than you can turn that cap completely off, popped out of his hands and fell to the floor.

"The gas came out with a rush," says Ben. "I held my breath and started feeling around in the coal for the cap. Then the boss, who didn't know I had the cap off, swore that I was looking for something, struck a match and set a load things."

The minute the boss struck that match there was a puff of flame that shot halfway across the bin. At the same time the fire ignited the gas flowing from the open pipe and a thick stream of hot flame began shooting down on the coal. "We scrambled down the pile for get through the door," says Ben, "but at the bottom we were stopped. The door was blocked by the fallen coal, and there we were in that eight by fourteen bin, with the gas main blowing a flame three feet into the coal."

The first thing Ben thought of was to try to scoop the coal away from the imprisoning door. They went at it with their hands, but the hot coal was sliding down from above as fast as they scooped it away and burned the very devil out of their hands.

They gave that up then and started to yell. They were down in the far end of the cellar and overhead was a busy restaurant with people talking and plates rattling. Would they be heard? It would be tough if they weren't. Fate had prepared a funeral pyre for them, and it looked as if they might [illegible] it.

Nobody heard the first yell. They yelled again and began to pound and hammer on the board partition of the bin. The coal under the gas flame was glowing in a bright, round patch, and that patch was rapidly widening. Ben began to heave against the partition with his shoulders—but the partition was too solid. Again he and the boss let out a concerted yell—again they fell to banging on the boards around the sides of the bin.

Then, suddenly, one of their yells brought an answering cry. They heard steps in the cellar outside the bin. Then came a blow on the planking outside—another—and another.

In ten seconds the door of the bin fell apart and Ben and the boss scrambled out to safety. Lady Luck was with them that morning. The kitchenman, who happened to be coming down to the basement for supplies had heard the last yell, picked up a heavy skid and smashed the door down with it.

"That," says Ben, "was the closest I ever came to being at my own barbecue.

There's ten dollars in it for any of you boys and girls who can send me a yarn as thrilling as Ben's. So ship that story along. Tomorrow I'm printing a swell yarn of a thrilling adventure by Constance Scacchi of Everett.

"IDIOT'S Delight" Victory Pleases All In Theater

By GEORGE HOLLAND

George Holland

There is a chance of repeating this time. Mr. Sherwood's final victory came most opportunely, too. It came after the New York Drama Critics' Circle decided for the first time the best play of the season. Its choice (Winterset) has not, unless I am very far wrong, become memorable to the latest Pulitzer award committee to damn it.

Mr. Sherwood, a Harvard graduate, He was editor of the white stucco at Cambridge and a Saturday night (There were three or four attractions in Boston years ago.) He served with a Highland regiment in the war, and in keeping Mr. Sherwood something to wear. Inches above the ankle is his stocking. It does not the size of his calves—the size of his modesty. It is the biggest chunk of modesty in the world. And in the world he is the very best playwright America.

For once and with a corner salutes the Pulitzer committee. Wrong for so many seasons that it is a joy when coming a joke the committee redeemed itself for once. There is more drama in a single honest writing than in "Idiot a Dream," with its obvious showmanship of the role of an American for Alfred Lunt. I acts of the heavily pretentious literature" Mr. Sherwood son in "Winterset."

"Tobacco Road" is destined to call it a run at the next week . . . Jeff Davis the dazzling little pianist at the Hotel Westminster Tea Room in the Grand Ballroom Broadway that is Boston the club has produced for Betty Weeks. She made it for Boston way only. Mr. Weeks Broadway and Hollywood Mr. Weeks set the rich salad bit of "undiscovered" talent out of pictures saw he Coconut Grove in night by Benny Ginsburg. If there is an obscure comment, it may be necessary to add that the Ginsburg operates the tea room Mayfair.

Janet Gaynor Is Star Of 'Ladies in Love'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, May 6 (US) — Janet Gaynor, who hasn't worked on her home lot, 20th Century-Fox, since the famous amalgamation of over a year ago, made her first picture there this month. She is the star in "Ladies in Love," E. H. Griffith's first picture for Darryl Zanuck under his new contract. "Ladies in Love" was formerly titled "Three Girls," but you know how these companies get title conscious and look for new monikers.

NEGLECTS TO EXPLAIN

'The Right to Live'

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University.)

New York, May 6—Two statements made on Monday by Washington politicians are typical of the times.

Hopkins, the Works Progress administrator, said that "Every American citizen" has the "right" to live in a decent home and to eat three meals a day. He held that building playgrounds helps to this end.

Does Mr. Hopkins consider America as a sort of benefit club, and believe that all anyone has to do is to be initiated in order to become immune to the ills of life that beset other human beings?

Does he think all American citizens are the same in strength, skill, intelligence, knowledge and character?

Just what is a "decent house?" if a man thinks his house is decent, but Mr. Hopkins doesn't, who is to decide?

Suppose the man is not able to earn enough to afford the sort of house Mr. Hopkins thinks he ought to have. Is Mr. Hopkins entitled to take your money and mine in order to give him such a house?

So it is with the "three meals a day." What kind of meals? Is every American citizen to have whatever kind and amount of food he wants—or what Mr. Hopkins thinks is good for him? If he can't earn a porterhouse income, where is the porterhouse to come from?

* * *

And what do playgrounds have to do with decent houses and three meals a day? Even an "American citizen" can't eat grass or making playgrounds butters no parsnips.

Playgrounds bring in no income. In fact, they raise our taxes at a time when we need our incomes, and thus reduce our ability to give relief to our fellows who are in need.

* * *

Senator Borah says that "our farm people" perform 25 per cent of the national work, use 16 2-3 per cent of the national capital, but receive only 10 per cent of the national income.

I suppose that the senator means just "farmers" when he unctuously refers to "our farm people."

But when he says that farmers do 25 per cent of the national work, neither he nor anyone else can know what he means. Nobody knows what the total of all work does is, or what the total work done by farmers is.

And if we did know, what of it? Are we to reward people according to the amount of effort they expend? Doesn't it make any difference what they do, or what products result from their exertions?

I know of people who put in much time and work raising Belgian hares or frogs, but did not make a go of it. Are they to be given part of the "national income?" If not, why not?

Why not have "our farm people" build a playground on every farm? This would require more "work," and Mr. Hopkins and Senator Borah could then give them more income, I suppose.

* * *

All this sort of talk is political flapdoodle. What these politicians want is to reward people in proportion to their votes.

They further appeal to the political notion that all American citizens have a right to vote. But it does not mean that they are all equally productive as workers. Therefore it does not mean that they have any "right" to any particular income.

Men do have certain rights. They have a right to existence, and to aid from their fellow men, as long as they are "good citizens." They have a right to an equal opportunity to show what is in them to do, and to a chance to earn all they can.

LONDON Watches FRANC

CAPITAL FLEES FRANCE

By Wylie King
London Financial Times
(Copyright, 1936, By Universal Service

London, May 5—The flight of capital from Paris attained serious proportions today, demanding substantial help from the British exchange control fund, which was believed to have bought upwards of 300,000,000 francs.

It was also understood that the Bank of France lost much gold to the United States.

Rumors were rife as to possible steps to check the capital outflow. One story was that the Bank of France was authorized to increase the minimum value of gold deliveries to 5,000,000 francs, as compared with 222,000 francs heretofore.

* * *

Speculators interpreted this means practically a gold embargo. Competent quarters stated such measures would be directed against private hoarding in France and would not entail modification of gold movements to other central banks.

It was believed in London that it is highly probable the technical position of francs must weaken tremendously before a devaluation decision. Late opinion in the city was that no political developments are expected in the next few days, but that some form of restriction will be necessary if the present drain persists.

The British control fund pegged the Paris rate today at 75 7-16 francs. The gold price was 140.375 shillings, including a premium of a shilling over the franc.

* * *

Paris bought kaffirs and international heavily. Hot late news reports on the possibility of an an embargo on capital movements from Paris were announced after Wall Street's closing.

There were rumors that the fixed trust intends to withdraw from using its powers to invest money in American stocks, in conformity with treasury requests, in order to relax any possible pressure on exchange.

Electric Power Output Up

Production of electricity by the electric light and power industry for week ended May 2 was 1,928,803,000 k. w. h., according to the Edison Electric Institute. This represented an increase of 13.6 per cent over the corresponding week of 1935. In week ended April 25 output was 1,932,797,000 k. w. h.

The following table shows the percentage changes for the latest week in the major geographic regions:

	P. C. changes 1936 over 1935
	Wk. end. May 2	Wk'ended April 25

STEEL Rate a Point LOWER

SPRING PEAK PASSED

By Associated Press

New York, May 6—The spring peak in steel mill activity has been passed, "Iron Age" said today in its mid-week review, but indicated that no precipitate drop was in prospect as demand was well sustained.

Steel ingot production dropped one point to 68 per cent of capacity this week, the first setback since the floods in March.

April pig iron production was at a rate of 80,123 tons daily, the survey stated, a 22 per cent gain over March. Eighteen blast furnaces were brought in during April and current output is at the best level since June, 1930.

* * *

The almost inevitable summer slump is forecast, however by the trend of scrap quotations. The Iron Age composite of heavy melting scrap has finally broken sharply, declining $2 a ton, a gross ton having been registered.

Supplementary rail orders are in prospect that will propably maintain mill operations at current levels through the quarter. Nickel Plate has ordered 777 freight cars and bids will be taken May 12 on 6100 cars for Chesapeake and Ohio and the Pere Marquette.

Automobile production appears to have reached the year's peak in April, but May assemblies are not expected to fall much below the 500,000-unit mark. This is because the introduction of new models in November makes this the seventh month in the production cycle.

* * *

The requirement of the other large outlets for flat-rolled steel are being maintained. Refrigerator and container makers are busy and the tin plate production at 90 per cent of capacity is barely keeping pace with shipments. Further increases in releases will be taken care of out of mill stocks to some extent.

The construction and pipe structure is holding up well. Many large consumers have not yet exhausted their buying power and their inventories, but will probably be forced into the market this month. The farm implement industry is unchanged at 2.097 cents a pound and the pig iron average is strong at $18.84 a gross ton.

CURB STOCKS Move Forward

New York, May 6 (AP)—The curb market made further progress in the direction of recovery today.

There was support for various mining issues, utilities and oils at fractionally higher levels. The best performers in the industrial group included American Cyanamid "B", which picked up a point in the early trading. Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Johns-Manville and Laughlin Steel.

Lincoln Stores

Lincoln Stores, Inc., declared regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents a share on common stock and $1.75 on preferred, both payable June 1 to stock of record May 25.

Cabot Mfg.

Cabot Manufacturing Company declared regular quarterly dividend of $1 per share, payable May 15 to stock of record May 8.

Bar Silver

London, May 6 (AP)—Bar silver quiet, 1-16 lower at 20¼d. (Sterling price equivalent to 45.29 cents.)

AVIATION TRADE EXPANDS

Sources of Revenue Listed

Despite all handicaps, including an occasional disaster, commercial aviation continues to expand.

It is expanding in all directions, too, passenger-carrying, mail carrying and express.

The chart shows graphically the growth commercially of the industry. It also shows, in the left section, how airplane rates have dropped precipitately.

Express shipments are playing a more prominent part in supporting the industry. In 1920 express shipments constituted only about 5 per cent of the mail carried.

In 1935 this had increased to about 42 per cent.

Passenger and mail rates have declined steadily since 1929. The air lines have reduced high operating costs and this, together with the depression influences, combined to lower rates.

Mail rates were cut by the Post Office department in May, 1934, when new contracts were granted. During 1935 the volume of mail carried was 40 per cent higher than in 1931, but revenues registered a decline in comparison with 1931, 1932 and 1933 because of the lower rates.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, May 6 — Renewed flight of French capital into other countries is still in the direction of the United States on quite a substantial scale, according to banking authorities.

However, these funds are going into short term bank deposits rather than securities for the present, possibly because of the uncertain immediate market outlook here.

* * *

In discussing the movement of foreign capital toward this center, bankers are calling attention to the Department of Commerce figures on the international balance of payments in 1935 as reflecting three distinct shifts. The inflow early last year is said to have represented repatriation of American funds previously sent out of this country due to nervousness over monetary developments.

The second inward movement was foreign money seeking short term investment and the third and longest trend during the latter half of the year was European money going into American securities as the "prospects for American business recovery improved." No breakdown of the totals representing each movement is possible, bankers explain.

* * *

M-K-T Revenue Gain Outruns Loadings

Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad's gross revenues are running about 20 per cent ahead of last year. At the same time, freight car loadings of the road on a cumulative basis are a little better than 10 per cent above last year.

The fact that the road's gain in gross is double the gain in volume of freight handled, is explained in the type of freight moving. While the carrier has benefited from expanded movement of grain, cotton and farm products, it has to a greater degree gained from expanding shipments of manufactured goods, much more profitable to handle from the revenue standpoint. The road's gross revenue for the first quarter aggregated $7,017,417, a gain of $1,228,000 over last year.

Net loss after charges for the quarter was $885,508, against $1,539,912 in the like 1935 period. Matthew S. Sloan, president, holds the road in 1936 will earn its interest charges for the first time since 1931. The M-K-T last year had net loss of $2,449,078, against net loss of $2,790,636 in 1934.

* * *

Tire Price Move Offsets Cost Rise

Enthusiasm toward rubber stocks arising from removal of the price discount on tires diminished somewhat yesterday without impairing the market strength of the group.

One reason for the relaxed buying demand was recognition that the move simply fulfilled expectations held by the Street for several weeks and that it merely corrects higher costs of crude rubber, labor and cotton fabrics.

It is a matter of fact, extremely doubtful if the action has done any more than counteract increased production costs, although single many observers feel it would be unsafe to assume that any more than a very small fraction of these higher prices will find their way into the column of net profits.

National Shawmut Bank Centennial

The National Shawmut Bank of Boston today enters its second century of service to this community. Established May 6, 1836, as the Warren Bank, it took the Shawmut title the following year, and is the largest New England bank to have retained its distinctive name for 100 consecutive years. Through mergers in 1898 and 1912, it succeeded to the banking business of the Tremont Bank, established in 1814.

"On behalf of all directors, officers and employees of the Shawmut family, I have the honor of responding to the many messages of congratulation which we are receiving on our hundredth anniversary. The knowledge that we may have contributed something toward the fulfillment of those high purposes for which our predecessors strove is, to us, a source of great satisfaction. It is now more than 12 years since I assumed the presidency of this great New England institution. In that time we have met many serious problems, yet through the depression of the 1930's, as in the troubled years of 1837, and later financial crises, the Shawmut ideal of 'outstanding strength' has been constantly maintained. We now look to the future with a full sense of responsibility for the maintenance of a great heritage."

WHEAT Stocks Less

Total wheat stocks held by 912 mills reporting to the Commerce Department as of March 31 were 86,096,541 bushels, against 130,774,367 bushels held by the same number of mills on December 31, 1935, and 87,313,688 bushels held by 895 mills as of March 31, 1935.

Wheat flour stocks held by the same mills as of March 31, 1936, were 4,068,023 barrels, against 4,222,265 barrels as of December 31, 1935, and 3,582,195 barrels on March 31, last year.

Bar Gold

London, May 6 (AP)—Bar gold advanced 3/4 pence to 140s 8d. (Sterling price equivalent to $34.02.)

Wall Street Hears

New York, May 6 (INS)—That a modest balance will be shown for the U. S. Steel (X) common shares in the first half.

That General Baking (GBG) first quarter earnings approximated those of a year ago.

That an upward revision of the U. S. Gypsum (USG) dividend rate is expected over the medium term.

Comments of Brokers

We continue to favor a trading policy, as we feel that the intermediary decline which is now taking place has still a number of weeks to run, and that for the present there is no apparent stimulus to change the present pattern of price movements.—R. S. Feigus, Prentice, Blauner & Brady.

An excellent opportunity is being presented those who failed to anticipate the recent decline by selling stocks, to do so now. Such a policy would appear advisable, unless willing or prepared to weather a fresh test of the low levels of last week upon completion of the present upturn.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

Unless the rails develop vigorous leadership a lit-tle immediately, would look for irregularity to lower levels in the general list.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Company.

It is likely that there will be considerable nervousness for a while and trade news will probably be mixed in the immediate future.—J. S. Wilson, Josephthal & Company.

The fact that one-third of the ground lost since a month ago today has been regained should have some significance, since rallies following new lows normally run from one-third to one-half of the reaction.—G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.

* * *

We would view dullness during recessionary intervals and the appearance of well defined support comfortably above recent lows as an invitation to pursue a re-accumulation policy.—J. S. Bache & Co.

REPORTS Of Trade TARDY

HUGE DEFICIT FORECAST

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

New York, May 6—Tardy national bookkeeping interferes with the ability of the American people to make adjustments to changes in international trends.

Preliminary official figures concerning American international balance of payments did not become available until this week, although comparable British statistics were published on February 21.

Revised figures for 1935 will not be available until the middle of the year, representing a lag of about 18 months on data related to January, 1935.

The Department of Commerce publishes monthly data on imports and exports of goods, but this information is somewhat misleading because it does not include capital and invisible transactions.

For the first three months, it was reported that the customary favorable balance of trade in goods had been converted into a deficit, or unfavorable balance of $5,000,000. A cursory reading of the figures would tend to give American's a false sense of security.

As a matter of fact, the true unfavorable balance for the quarter is probably nearer $220,000,000, instead of $5,000,000.

The subjoined table, which is based on the figures available and on estimates based on experience in 1935, gives a true picture of the international position of the United States vis-a-vis the rest of the world.

Exports of Merchandise	$578,128
Imports of Merchandise	580,501
An Excess of Imports over Exports of	$5,377
But our imports are stated at the cost at the foreign port. The United Kingdom and other countries state imports c.i.f., freight and insurance included. From best information available, these items approximate 10 per cent of the cost price, additional for the quarter	$580,510
Increasing the unfavorable balance on merchandise account	$5,387
The Department of Commerce further reports that we imported more gold than we exported in the quarter	$63,387
We imported more silver than we exported in the amount	$33,903
Making the total of imports of merchandise in excess of exports	$161,978
In addition to the considerable nervousness for a while and trade news will probably be mixed in the immediate future.—J. S. Wilson, Josephthal & Company.
The fact that one-third of the ground lost since a month ago today has been regained should have some significance, since rallies following new lows normally run from one-third to one-half of the reaction.—G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.
We would view dullness during recessionary intervals and the appearance of well defined support comfortably above recent lows as an invitation to pursue a re-accumulation policy. —J. S. Bache & Co.

Estimated for three months of 1936 on the basis of the ratio of the expenditures for the first year 1935, we would show such net expenditures to us of $75,000

From which we would deduct one-fourth of the estimated receipts from foreign investments in 1935	$75,500
Leaving net payments on account of items of	$3,500
And a total unfavorable balance of	$164,878

All of these omitted in figures above).

Even the foregoing does not tell the entire story. In the official figures no allowance is made for bad debts on export account or for advantages obtained through foreign trade manipulations, for capital gains by foreigners holding American investments. These matters are scarcely offset by equivalent adjustments on American purchases overseas.

The United States has not blocked exchange against foreigners. Neither is it customary for American firms to buy imports on consignment, though frequently exports are sold on that basis.

Moreover, the American import figures do not include goods brought in by tourists withjn the exemption nor smuggled goods.

Wm. Carter Co.

STREET RAILWAYS

Chelsea LINE SALE Rushed

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Governor Curley is pressing for completion of the plans whereby the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway will sell its Chelsea division to the Boston Elevated.

Declaring that all difficulties have been overcome, the governor has called for the Public Utilities Commission to meet at once and authorize the sale.

Governor Curley's action followed conferences with General Manager Dana of the Elevated and labor union representatives, representing employes of both railways. An agreement has been reached providing for the absorption of practically all employes of Eastern Massachusetts by Elevated, with further allowance for certain age deficiency. Governor Curley believes this removes the last barrier to the sale and there is no excuse for longer delay.

While on the subject of street railways it is worth while noting hearings on the Elevated public ownership bill at the State House. The House Ways and Means Committee is conducting the hearings on certain plans relating to the acquisition, ownership, management and regulation by the Boston Metropolitan District. The issue is to be submitted to the voters of the district, according to present plans. But so far representatives of ten of the fourteen communities affected have declared themselves against the bill and against public ownership.

Notebook: The United Drug "Rexall" train is proving to be an advertising scheme scheduled for top ranking . . . Those interested drug marketwise say the huge turnout of 250,000 visitors this early on its country wide trip forecasts final totals in the vicinity of 1,500,000 people . . . Interest in Rexall products is said to be keen and they believe it will boost sales . . . And the big Boston company will show good gains in the usually dull sales months.

While the stock market has moved up in technical recovery it has hardly been electrifying. Rather prices just wriggled higher. However, a few issues of low or lower equals slightly better than one-third and we are inclined to caution. Prompted, of course, by the lack of volume and vigor. Unless this is to be a market without precedent there will be a later reaction to lower levels. Accounts should make sure their accounts are sufficiently well off to ride out another spell of stormy weather.

This and That: If we have our way, sales on strength from here on are to be few and far between for the reason given above, then for the sake of mobility . . . The same stocks will lead all the next intermediate upturn if we may judge by past behavior . . . And it is a very pleasant feeling to have cash on hand to take advantage of promising situations during weak spells . . . As a general thing the best profits in the market are made by traders who make it a practice to have cash on hand to cover buying as promising opportunities present themselves.

METAL SHARES FEATURE

New York, May 6 (AP) —The stock market was dull today, but the firmness of mines, oils and specialties tended to keep the list, as a whole, pointing moderately upward.

While the domestic picture continued bright, foreign affairs were such as to hold many traders in neutral territory and the ticker tape dragged during the greater part of the session.

Gainers of fractions to 2 points, near the approach of the fourth hour, included Dome, American Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, U. S. Smelting, Anaconda, Kennecott, Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Texas Corp, Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester, Case, Chrysler, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem. The utilities and rails were only slightly improved.

Bonds displayed a steadier tone. Commodities were narrowly mixed and the dollar was about even in terms of leading European currencies.

Favorable News

Fears for the ultimate stability of the French franc apeared to be growing and the ability of the republic to remain on gold to avoid a gold embargo, was viewed in banking quarters as highly questionable.

The French monetary unit was accorded support in foreign exchange dealings when the Bank of France boosted its discount rate from 3 to 6 per cent in an effort to halt the flight of gold.

Relative liveliness of some of the mining shares, with a lift in the price of bar gold at London and further hedging demand of Asiatic buyers, the value of gold in bloc currencies will be reduced sooner or later. Oils reflected a better profits outlook although gasoline storage showed a contra-seasonal increase last week.

Iron Age estimated current steel production at 68 per cent of capacity, a recession of one point under the previous week. Another view pointed out that, while spring activity in the steel mills apparently had passed its peak, no precipitate drop is in prospect.

Demand, it was said, is well sustained in most directions and indicationt point to a likelihood that production this month will not be much under the April total, which was the best in seven years.

A more than seasonal expansion in electric power consumption for the week ended Saturday pushed the Associated Press index to the highest point on record.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions the French franc was .00¼ of a cent firmer at 6.58⅛ cents and sterling was ¼ of a cent easier at $4.96.

M. A. Hanna Co.

M. A. Hanna Company declared a dividend of 25 cents on the common, payable May 20 to stock of record May 9. On November 1, 1933, a dividend of 25 cents was paid.

Washington Notebook

After a severe slump, shipments of unmanufactured tobacco in the first quarter increased 23.5 per cent as compared with the comparable period last year.

After several years of decline, the tax bill of the railroads has turned upward, increased in part by payment under the railroad retirement act, the Association of American Railroads reports.

Class 1 roads in March, when the retirement levies became effective, paid $20,847,032 in taxes, an increase of $5,768,718, or 28.7 per cent over the same month last year.

Treasury figures reveal about $388,000,000 in federal obligations have been retired in the current fiscal year, which began July 1, out of the sinking fund.

All were non-member insured banks. In addition nine non-insured banks, with deposits of $16,630,000, were placed in liquidation or receivership.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

WEDNESDAY, MAY 6, 1936

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION net paid average, 6 months ending March 31, 1936 260,723

America Should Get Rid of ALL Foreign-Born Revolutionists!

OUR laws ordain that none but AMERICAN CITIZENS may vote in our elections.

From this it follows logically that MEMBERSHIP IN ANY POLITICAL PARTY is a civil right that should be restricted to CITIZENS ONLY.

And there is ONLY ONE PARTY that flagrantly and insolently VIOLATES this honest principle — THE COMMUNIST PARTY.

In defiance of both THE SPIRIT and THE LETTER of the laws, the Communist Party of America ADMITS ALIENS to membership in its ranks and councils.

Our of fear of the punitive election laws, these alien Communists may not REGISTER and VOTE, but they DO contribute to the Communist Party's funds, hundreds of them using GOVERNMENT RELIEF MONEY for the purpose; and they DO take part in the Communist Party's revolutionary propaganda and disturbances—claiming a "privilege" for themselves which AN AMERICAN CITIZEN cannot exercise without being DISLOYAL TO HIS OWN COUNTRY.

And the MERE FACT of MEMBERSHIP in the Communist Party—even PASSIVE membership—makes ANY ALIEN immediately and mandatorily DEPORTABLE as an enemy of America.

The foregoing syllabus, which ought to be memorized by every good American, is derived from a memorable decision handed down on March 21 last by Federal Judge Caffey, in New York, in refusing to stay the deportation of an alien Communist named Mueller.

The case was one of the notorious Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born cases — a case in which that organization furnished "legal aid" in an effort to circumvent the deportation laws and to protect an alien engaged in subversive activities in this country.

And it is an IMPORTANT CASE because the DEFENSE which was set up is a defense COMMONLY USED by alien-minded organizations in behalf of ALIEN REVOLUTIONISTS.

* * *

THE first point claimed by the defense was that AN AMERICAN CITIZEN cannot be DEPORTED for advocating the use of force or violence to overthrow the Government of the United States, and that AN ALIEN should consequently have the same immunity as a CIVIL RIGHT.

Judge Caffey's dictum on this specious plea has been summarized as follows by the New York Law Journal:

1—"ALIENS are NOT, awarded the same freedom of thought and of belief as CITIZENS."

2—"The Communist Party BELIEVES IN OVERTHROWING BY FORCE OR VIOLENCE THE GOVERNMENT OF THIS COUNTRY, and is a party within the class of organizations in which membership is PROSCRIBED for aliens allowed by law to remain in the United States."

In other words, ANY alien Communist in this country MUST BE DEPORTED.

* * *

THE second point pleaded was that the Communist Mueller was a political refugee from Europe, whose life or liberty would be endangered were he to return to his native land.

Judge Caffey overruled the plea because the Communist had the privilege of GOING TO SOME OTHER COUNTRY — Soviet Russia, for example.

That is, of course, according to STATUTORY law.

But there is also a MORAL law involved which ALIEN SYMPATHIZERS SHOULD BE MADE TO RECOGNIZE.

By what license does a fugitive alien FROM ANYWHERE, escaping danger or oppression in his home land, seek and find a sanctuary in America, demand the equal protection of our free institutions — and then basely abuse and betray the hospitality afforded him TO PLOT THE DESTRUCTION OF THESE VERY INSTITUTIONS?

There is no such right! An alien conspirator AGAINST THIS COUNTRY forfeits the status of a political refugee. And there is just one way of dealing with these contemptible and crooked ingrates—ROUND THEM UP and DEPORT THEM ALL!

The duty of the DEPARTMENT OF LABOR is thus UNMISTAKABLE under the law.

Moreover, Congress should provide that any NATURALIZED CITIZEN shall lose his citizenship by HOLDING MEMBERSHIP in the Communist Party, or supporting its doctrines, and shall be IMMEDIATELY DEPORTABLE.

We need to get rid of the OLGINS as well as the MUELLERS.

* * *

Why should the Communist Party, which belongs to Moscow and not to America, and which inveterately receives ALIEN REVOLUTIONISTS into its ranks, be tolerated ON ANY BALLOT ANYWHERE IN AMERICA—OR EVEN ON AMERICAN SOIL?

A Disgraceful Policy

The British Government was bitterly and painfully reminded of this when the Chancellor of the Exchequer was subjected to a scornful grilling the other day in the House of Commons on the repudiation of England's war debt to the United States.

Winston Churchill, a former Chancellor of the Exchequer, chiding his successor, said the present Government of England had dealt with the debt to America in a manner which would not have been tolerated by previous Governments.

"The old standards," said he, "the strict and punctual discharge of international obligations —all are gone, unwept, unhonored and unsung."

ANOTHER speaker, Sir Francis Acland, declared he did not want Britain "written down permanently in the ignoble company of debt defaulters."

Chancellor Chamberlain's pretense that he had balanced the British budget was mercilessly riddled by Arthur Greenwood, a leader of the Laborites in the Commons, who derided the so-called balance as fraudulent, and merely representing a cold-blooded write-off of England's debt to America.

"Chamberlain has balanced all his budgets," said Greenwood, "either by defaulting in his payments to the United States or by robbing somebody's hen roost."

After all, there isn't so much difference in principle between robbing a hen roost and robbing a friendly nation.

IT is small wonder that the disgraceful policy of repudiation which England has shamelessly chosen to pursue with reference to this debt of honor should rankle in British breasts and should be the occasion, at recurring intervals, of such outbursts of derision and reproach as were heard in the House of Commons.

Discharge the Parasites

Twenty thousand men and women will be discharged by June 30, Works Progress Administration officials announce. And 8386 workers are due to lose their jobs by May 15.

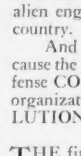
As administrators look over the rolls to determine whom to remove and whom to retain one thought should be uppermost in their minds. That thought is DISCHARGE THE POLITICAL HANGERS-ON; KEEP THE DESERVING JOBLESS.

None will deny that millions of dollars of relief funds have been thrown away on ward-heelers and petty politicians. Nor will anyone dispute the fact that every cent paid these wasters is food taken from the stomachs of the needy poor for whom the money was appropriated.

It is too late to recover the millions that have been squandered for political purposes. But it is not too late to distinguish the worthy citizen from the political parasite.

Listen World!

By Elsie Robinson



Elsie Robinson

You can have your grand opera —your imported rondeaux, pastorale, cavatinas, cadenzas and nocturnes. I'd swap them all for one old cowboy song! Nothing much in the way o' music—that song. Just one of those sing-song things, called "Hobo Bill." But, I'm telling you, it comes nearer to our American heart and hope than a score of symphonies.

Ever hear real cowboys doing their stuff on the range? I have, for many a year —sprawled by some camp fire, with the shadows circling . . . and the great stars blazing low . . . and the restless herd milling round and round, eyes rolling, horns tossing . . . and the cowboys jogging beside them, singing their monotone.

Ever sing out like that—poor and homeless as any maverick—with the smell of dry grass and cowhide in your nose, and the joy of the gypsy trail in your veins?

Your grandfather did, if you didn't—and all that ragged crew who built America. And they'd have understood the song of "Hobo Bill," even if you can't—for they built America for him! LISTEN!

"Speeding through the night,
"Hobo Bill, the railroad bum,
"Was fighting for his life;
"The sadness of his eyes revealed
"The torture of his soul.
"He raised a weak and weary hand
"To brush away the cold."

A dying tramp—too sick of it all to raise a hand even to his own help—how bitter well you know that feeling, if you've ever been a down-and-outer yourself, "speeding through the night" that seemed to have no dawning!

"No warm lights flickered around him,
"No blankets there to fold,
"Nothing but the howling wind
"And the driving rain so cold;
"When he heard a whistle blowing
"In a dreamy sort of way,
"The hobo seemed contented
"For he smiled there where he lay."

Howling wind, driving rain—they're "climate" to the fellow with a bank roll . . . but the cruel pit of hell to the fellow without. AND DEATH, TO MANY A ONE, IS A BETTER BREAK.

"Outside the rain was falling
"On that lonely box car door
"But the little form of Hobo Bill
"Lay still upon the floor.
"There was no mother's longing
"To soothe his weary soul,
"For he was just a railroad bum
"Who died out in the cold."

Just a nameless bum who died out in the cold. Yet nameless and homeless though he was, America was built for him.

AND IF YOU CAN'T CARRY ON THEIR FLAMING PITY FOR THE WEAK, THEIR PROUD HOPE FOR THE HELPLESS, THEN YOU DON'T DESERVE TO BEAR THEIR NAME.

The Crape Hanger

When he drops that hornets' nest inside the fence the folks there will all wish they had been wearing Tax Hair Shirts and Anta-in-the-Pants like all the rest of us.

Imagine anyone daring to run around in the natural state when there are taxes to be collected on everything we wear from hats to shoes!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 6 — After 26 years in Paris, A. G. Warshawsky, American painter known to his friends as "Buck," has been receiving the salvos of American admirers while exhibiting in New York. He is one of the few painters who might pose for a Bellows prizefighter.

He has many pictures in American museums and Paris salons, and the French government bought his "Mountains of Provence." His career again illustrates that fortunate borderline so often separating the artist from abject failure and notable success. If he but takes the right step.

Warshawsky was living the lentils and dried fish life of the Latin Quarter attics when one day he decided to surrender his ideals and return to America to teach boxing, a calling by which he had put himself through a Paris art school. He borrowed enough for a steerage passage.

A day before sailing he had word that a dealer in Washington had sold one of his pictures for $500. He decided to stick a while longer. Four years later the sales of his pictures in 12 months totaled $40,000. Incidentally, his first artistic instinct was to decorate his mother's cookies with raisins

Emotion has a mercurial effect on the New York appetite. After a big football game or a world series contest, restaurant receipts rise astonishingly and statistics show the individual checks are far above the average. The day Lindbergh arrived from his European triumph a new high in income from eating was attained. This rise always follows a carnival spirit.

Dinty Moore's restaurant is a symbol of New York's incurable hanker for plain food. It has outlived many of the fancy restaurants of the town and is still going strong with corn beef and cabbage as the piece de resistance. It is a gaudily mirrored place with tile floor and ancient waiters who talk back. Its menu lists no French phrases and its combination salad for one is a meal for two hungry vegetarians. People who go to Dinty's forget cocktails, order beer in gorging draughts and drink four fingers neat.

The most typical of the pure Broadwayese restaurant patronage is at Lindy's. Its menu, too, is straight from the shoulder and without frills. And the art of eating is purged of Emily Post's advices. There is always a strange mixture of humanity at Lindy's any hour of the day or night. Platinum blondes and the blue-shirted boys with the terrier eyes. Tight lipped, blue-shaven gamblers who somehow always twitch necks in close colored collars. The wandering back slapper hoping for invitation to draw up a chair.

But against this background an overtone of celebrities that probably could not be found in any other restaurant in New York—Al Joison, Irving Berlin, Damon Runyon, Phil Baker and always an operatic star such as Lawrence Tibbett or Lily Pons.

The parfumier is becoming extravagantly exotic in his zeal for attention. I notice in Harper's Bazaar the heralding of a new scent with this subtlety: "A heady worldly fragrance that will lead you into trouble if you let it!" Mad with one's own perfume, as it were!

And I hear many debutantes with impoverished families are picking up some smart side money touting certain brands of perfume at functions. "I discovered this aroma. Isn't it lovely. Katherine Cornell uses it, etc."

All Alien Communists Must Be Deported

Hon. Francis B. Caffey,
Judge of the United States District Court, Southern District of New York.
In the case of Alfred Mueller, alias Alfred F. Miller.

Judge Caffey: Both the Labor Department and the Court are obligated to carry out the will of Congress, as expressed in the immigration laws . . .

It is conceded in behalf of the relator (Alfred Fort Mueller, an alien Communist) that the findings as made by the Labor Department bring him within the statutory provisions which direct that he be deported.

The sole questions therefore are:

(1) Was there evidence on which any finding as made could be based?

(2) Was the procedure fair?

The relator is an alien. In 1929 he was admitted to this country. He has been here ever since.

IN 1930 HE BECAME A MEMBER OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF THE UNITED STATES.

For more than a year prior to his arrest he wrote voluminously in advocacy of its doctrines.

All of this is without dispute.

On April 23 (1935) a warrant containing charges of violating the immigration laws was served on and read to him. . .

In the warrant there were three charges. All related to alleged conduct with respect to OVERTHROW BY FORCE AND VIOLENCE OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES. In substance they were that—

(1) He believed in, advised, advocated or taught this;

(2) He wrote, published, or caused to be written or published, printed matter advising, advocating or teaching this; and

(3) After entry he became a member of, or affiliated with, an organization, association, society or group that believes in, advocates or teaches this.

If guilty of ANY ONE of the specified charges the law requires . . . that he be deported . . .

Was there evidence on which the Labor Department could find that the first charge was true?

THE ALIEN DECLARED THAT HE FAVORED AND URGED THAT THE SOVIET FORM OF GOVERNMENT AS IT PREVAILS IN RUSSIA REPLACE THE EXISTING FORM OF GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

(The record of Mueller's preliminary examination of March 31, 1935, is here referred to in the decision as showing that Mueller described "the use of force or violence to substitute a Soviet form of government in the United States" as being in accordance with "the teachings of Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln.")

JUDGE CAFFEY: Let it be ASSUMED that Jefferson or Lincoln advocated the use of force or violence in overthrowing the Government of the United States, or what is equivalent, ASSUME that a citizen of the United States today advocates that course.

This would not help the relator. HE IS AN ALIEN. That makes the difference under our law.

In its wisdom Congress has prohibited ALIENS from doing what the relator, BY IMPLICATION, suggests was done by two great Americans. CONGRESS HAS GONE FURTHER. It prescribed that if AN ALIEN while occupying a GUEST STATUS in this country, violates the prohibitions HE SHALL BE DEPORTED.

On the other hand, it has not provoked, and perhaps is without constitutional power to provide, that AN AMERICAN CITIZEN who does the same thing shall be deported.

It is because the law governing WHO shall be deported discriminates in this way between ALIENS and CITIZENS that the attempt of AN ALIEN to justify his conduct by pointing to what A CITIZEN is allowed to do is WITHOUT FORCE.

Obviously, if AN ALIEN be found guilty of such a VIOLATION OF LAW as is now under discussion, the Labor Department WOULD BE RECREANT TO ITS DUTY if it failed to issue a warrant for his deportation.

Let us turn now to the third finding . . . The relator stated that in 1930 he joined, and that he still is an active member of, a party WHICH THE COURTS HAVE GENERALLY HELD BELIEVES IN OVERTHROWING BY FORCE OR VIOLENCE THE GOVERNMENT OF THIS COUNTRY.

Moreover, the documentary evidence COMPLETELY JUSTIFIES the Labor Department in treating the COMMUNIST PARTY as within the class of organizations membership in which is proscribed for an alien allowed by law to remain in the United States . . .

At the oral argument it was urged that if the relator returns to his native land there is danger of his being persecuted there.

If the danger exists I do not believe the Court has power to relieve it.
